After an abbreviated visit to the dinner, Mrs. Chapman returned to the waiting patrol car. Rushed back to O'Hare, she was flown back to the Capital, arriving at the House about 10:45 p.m.

Over the protests of weary and impatient legislators, House Democratic Leader Clyde Choate, with the assent of Blair, won approval of a motion to adjourn until Sunday afternoon, still nursing the hope of a weekend compromise.

The intent of the negotiations, he said, is that none of the principals (Blair, Daley and Walker) enter into them "anything that is not negotiable."

Chief Guttilla said to be inaccessible

Political climate throwing police morale into a slump

by LYNN ASINOF

Morale at the Wheeling Police Department is in a slump. Policemen say they feel threatened, not by the public, but by the political climate in Wheeling, and the way it has spilled over into their department.

For some time, policemen have been grumbling that there is a lack of communication between the officers and the men. They have charged that Chief Peter Guttilla is inaccessible and out of touch with the day-to-day operations of the department. But the average patrolman feels most uneasy about how politics is affecting his job.

TO FIND OUT why, The Herald talked to more than a dozen Wheeling policemen, seeking their views on the department's problems. Most of the officers interviewed asked that their names not be used.

Although Police Chief Peter Guttilla denies the existence of any political influences in his department, the men are skeptical. They regularly have seen various political figures troupe through the police station and are convinced that political considerations are involved in hiring, promotions and disciplinary action.

For example, Michael Valenza, former trustee and current chairman of the environmental commission, met with Guttilla almost daily during the time when he held no village office. Also during this time, Valenza's daughter Lynnette, was hired as a police records clerk.

Valenza and his business partner Vern Nystrom, chairman of the police and fire commission, often come and go through the rear door of the station. Jack Johnson, former warden at the Cook County Jail now working for the state revenue department, has also been seen at the station.

"WE SEE THESE politicians and how would this make you feel?" asked one officer, implying that the presence of political figures in the police station indicates involvement by them in department affairs.

The current federal grand jury investigation into official corruption in Wheeling has also touched the police department. Several officers have been interviewed by federal agents working on the case.

One policeman, who may reflect the views of other department members, said he was "just waiting to see what happens." In the meantime, he said he was not willing to stick his neck out by talking too much about the department.

"They're basically afraid of talking too much," another policeman said of his co-workers. "They're frightened. They feel threatened. There's finagling and they're afraid they might get on the list."

Guttilla said these incidents are not indicative of political influence in the department. He said the political figures seen in his office were there either on personal matters or police business. He said none had access "to anything in this police department."

WHEN ASKED about Valenza's repeated appearances at the station, Guttilla said "if he comes into the police department with a member of the police and fire commission, I certainly can't ask him to leave." Jack Johnson, he said, is a "personal friend of mine."

Talk of political influence has been circulating in the police station ever since June, 1972 when Guttilla was appointed acting chief of police, after former Chief M. O. Horecher became ill.

Guttilla's police background includes working as a patrolman with the Cook County Sheriff's Police from 1947 to 1961, when he was promoted to plainclothes detective. He reportedly worked at the Niles division of the sheriff's office under Johnson, who later went on to become county jail warden.

In 1962, Guttilla was fired when Sheriff Richard Ogilvie took over the county police. Guttilla claims the firing was politically motivated. Guttilla has also been reported as a one-time precinct captain for former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Jimmy Stavros, a behind-the-scenes influence in village government.

FOR MUCH OF the 10 years prior to his appointment in Wheeling, Guttilla was not associated with police work. He was employed as a road equipment operator for two governmental agencies, apparently holding two jobs at the same time.

Some policemen say the chief has become isolated from the day-to-day workings of the department, with shift commanders carrying most of the responsibility for the department.

"We don't have communications. I think we'd just rather not deal with him," said one policeman. "There's no direction from him at all as to what we should be doing. That's a morale buster in some areas."

The cause for some of this grumbling is the strict enforcement of chain-of-command in the department. While the men are free to talk to the chief at any time, they must first contact their superiors before approaching him.

ACCORDING TO some policemen, this emphasis on chain-of-command makes relationships strained and prevents a free flow of ideas in the department.

Guttilla, however, sees the enforcement of chain-of-command as absolutely essential to the department at this stage of its development. The chief said in the past the department was what "you would call a family group. That is no more," he said.

"Either we're going to run a police department or we're going to run a country club here," Guttilla said. He noted that the policemen are among the highest paid in northern Cook County. He said the citizens deserve the kind of police department they are paying for.

Lt. Ron Nelson agreed with Guttilla over the need for chain-of-command. "It's a must. It's an absolute must," he said.

According to Nelson, "It's (morale) probably very low right now because there was some disciplinary action by the police department and that's always a bummer for morale."

A PATROLMAN was suspended by the chief last month for the improper care and storage of evidence. The police and fire commission overturned the chief's ruling and reduced the suspension from five days to one day.

In addition, Nelson said Guttilla has been responsible for starting several new programs, and cited the new walk-and-talk program. "New programs don't bolster morale. New programs shoot it down," he said. "When you make any change in the normal routine, everyone goes haywire until things settle down."

Guttilla said he feels his actions are necessary to bring the police department into a new era. "Certain things have to be done to show these people we're in a new era," he said.

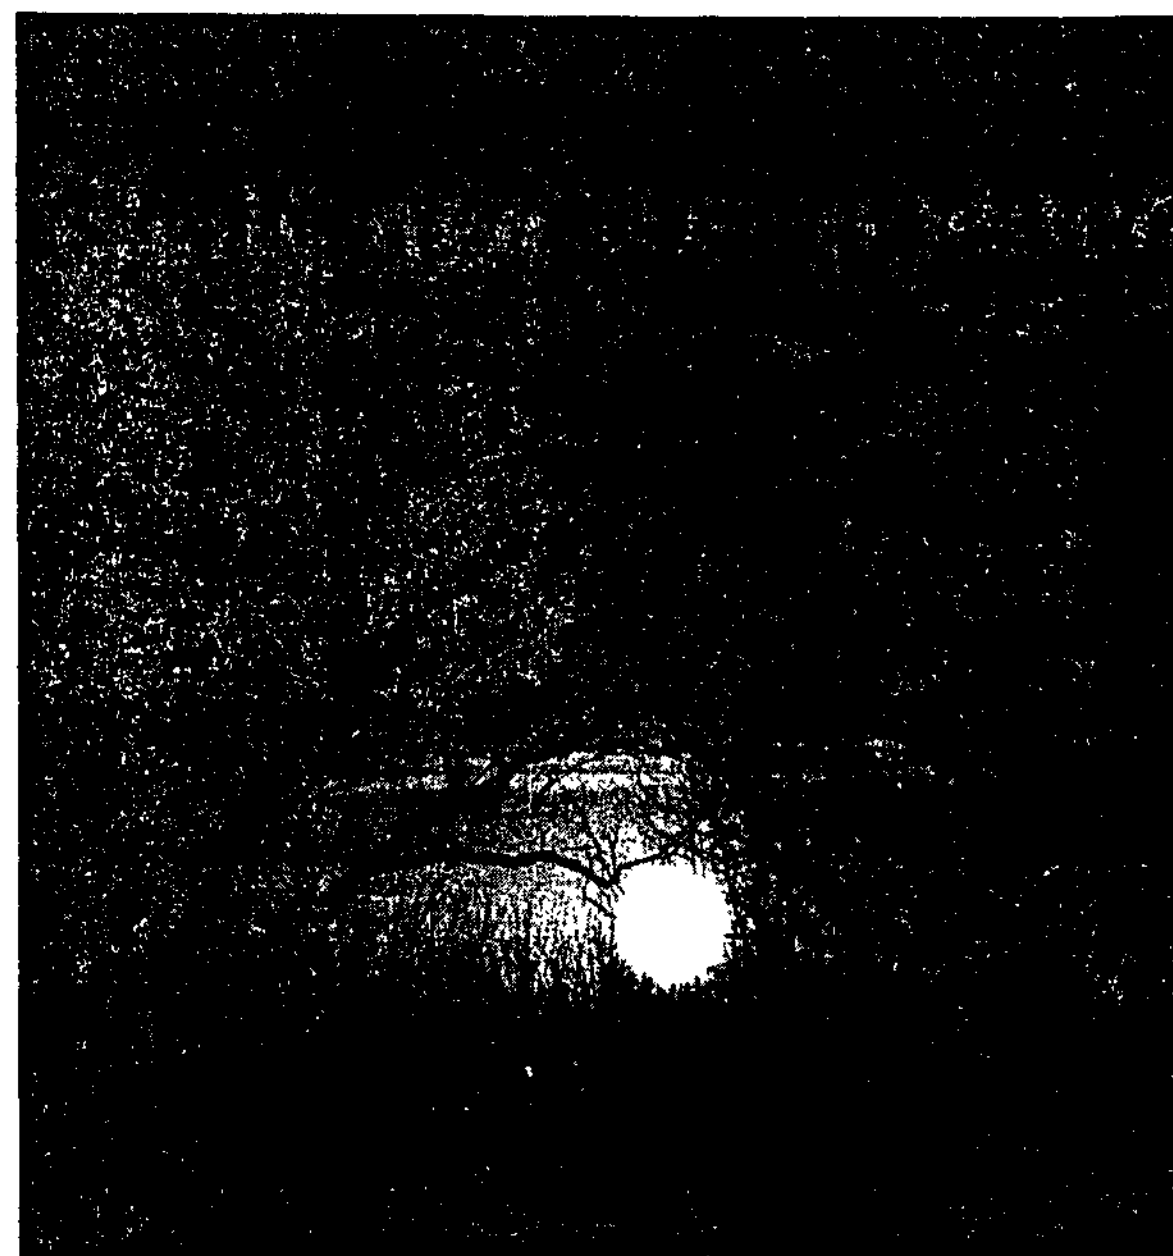

SEVERAL PATROLMEN, however, have indicated that this chain-of-command is being carried to extremes to muzzle criticism in the department. Complaints or problems are often not passed on to the higher-ups, they say. As a result, nothing is done about them and only the patrolmen are aware of them.

Several village trustees were asked about police morale. They said they were unaware of any problems. They said it was their understanding that things were going smoothly. They admitted, however, that if there were a morale problem, the patrolmen would probably not talk openly with them about it.

Nearly a dozen policemen contacted by The Herald said they felt most members of the department were proud of their work. They said, however, this personal pride had little to do with the declining police morale.

According to Guttilla, the complaints are limited to a few persons in the department.

"I certainly don't think morale is as bad as certain people say it is. It's mainly among one or two or three individuals possibly," he said.

Poll response 'tremendous'

Survey results: hospital needed for area

Results of a survey to determine the need for a hospital in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area indicate a positive response to a proposed 200-bed hospital. Statistics from the poll will be announced by Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon later this week.

Norman Davis, consultant for the proposed hospital under study by the Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital, said he completed the survey analysis this weekend and has sent a copy of the report to Scanlon.

"From the standpoint of response," Davis said, the survey was "tremendous." Of the more than 5,300 surveys mailed to Wheeling residents, Davis said the village received nearly 1,500 back.

"The main thing we were seeking was the medical habits of the area," he said. "Basically what we were trying to figure out was where they were going and to what extent they were going."

DAVIS SAID DETAILS of the survey would be made public by Scanlon. He indicated, however, that the survey seemed to indicate a reasonable need in the area for a hospital.

Scanlon said he will wait until after Thanksgiving to release the results so he will have a time to review the survey. "I know the complete report of the survey, but I have not received a copy of the complete analysis," he said, "I want to look it over."

The village president said he will soon be setting up a reviewing committee to screen applicants who wish to serve on the proposed hospital's board of directors. Scanlon said he has received a number of applications for the position, but is still seeking more interested persons, particularly in Wheeling.

Four of the directors will come from Wheeling and three will come from Buffalo Grove. Scanlon said he worked through St. Mary's Church and the newspaper to attract Buffalo Grove residents for the directors' posts.

ACCORDING TO DAVIS, the board of directors is needed before any applications can be made for the hospital. The consultant said even after the preliminary planning work is completed, the hospital may run into problems when plans are submitted to area planning associations.

"There's probably a 90 per cent chance that the planning agencies will turn us all down," Davis said. He said these area planning groups are not in favor of new hospitals being developed, but look instead to the expansion of present facilities.

Currently, representatives of the Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital are negotiating for the Childerly Retirement House property at 506 McHenry Road for the proposed satellite hospital. Davis said to his knowledge, nothing has been settled on these negotiations.

Some residents in Wheeling have expressed concern that the hospital is considering Childerly a possible site. They said the property is valuable for both historical and recreational reasons, and also said a hospital would aggravate already serious traffic problems on McHenry Road.

Revenue-sharing funds weighed for bike paths

Bicycle trails throughout Prospect Heights may be possible through use of Wheeling Township federal revenue-sharing funds.

The Prospect Heights Park District is readying an application with the township for a share of its federal funds. Park Comr. Patricia Kerwin said she feels there is a good chance bicycle trails would qualify under fund-use guidelines adopted by the township.

Wheeling Township so far has received $347,813 in federal revenue sharing monies. Forms from Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus have been received by the park district and will be filled out "as quickly as possible," Kerwin said.

Park Director Ronald Greenberg said the park board will have to decide where the bike trails should go and come up with some kind of cost factor for the application to the township.

A DECISION would have to be made whether the bike trails should parallel existing roads (requiring paving materials) or if they should be part of the existing roadways (requiring only signs and paint), Greenberg said.

So far, Greenberg said he has talked with Commonwealth Edison officials about the company's right-of-way for a bicycle trail. Greenberg said Commonwealth Edison said yes to the idea.

Kerwin suggested the bike trails follow the paths taken by students on their way to school. She said it would increase the children's safety too. Comr. Max Lyle said any Prospect Heights bike trails should be worked out so that they tie in with other communities' bike trails.

Police probe fatal car-train crash

A police investigation has revealed that the train gates were working properly Saturday night when an Arlington Heights man's car was struck by a Soo Line R.R. train. The car driver, Henry S. Kolben, 19, of 2403 Sherwood Ln., was killed in the Camp McDonald Road accident.

The freight train's engineer told police he saw the car slow down as it approached the crossing. The next thing he knew, the engineer told police, the collision took place.

Police said Kolben's car was found 132 feet north of Camp McDonald Road, where the 10:47 p.m. accident occurred. Kolben was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital, apparently due to head injuries.

Incumbent Democrats seek support in appearance before slatemakers

by AL MESSEUSCHMIDT
Two incumbent Democratic county officials — Clerk Stanley Kusper and Assessor P. J. Cullerton — sought suburban support in appearances before party slatemakers yesterday.

Both Kusper, an appointee to the post in March, and Cullerton, who was elected in 1970, were careful to list suburban "accomplishments" in the second session at the LaSalle Hotel. For the first time, slatemakers include 30 Democratic township committeemen from the suburbs.

Cullerton, 74, ran into stiff questioning and criticism from Chicago aldermen who oppose his reëlection. U. S. Rep. Morgan F. Murphy also requested slating for the assessor's post. Kusper was unopposed for clerk.

"It will be very difficult in my ward to carry you in this election," Ald. Edward R. Vrdolyak said. "Everybody has a day to retire."

CULLERTON WAS asked by Ald. Edward Burke to name the number and type of real estate classifications proposed in his plan that won county board finance committee approval last Wednesday. Burke also asked the locations of five suburban offices that recently were rented by the assessor. "I don't know at this time," Cullerton said.

The assessor pledged to back the Democratic ticket and said he will actively campaign in all townships and wards as he did in 1970. "I made a survey," Ald. Wilson Frost answered, listing a dozen Chicago wards. "It indicates that you did not appear in 1970. Have you had occasion to visit the south and west sides of Chicago? Woodlawn? Lawndale?"

"Yes, I have," Cullerton said. "A considerable number of people in your administration have confessed to bribery" and were tried on evasion of income tax charges. New Trier committeeman Lynn A. Williams said. "Charges on tax breaks are part of a point of view that this is not a decision the assessor ought to be making. You make them (criminal and assessments charges) seem more trivial than they are."

"As an assessor, I used by judgment in those cases. These are men who have made a great contribution to this city. They should be given some consideration. I'd do it for any individual. I apologize to no one for my action in those cases," Cullerton said.

Ald. Roman Pucinski defended the assessor. "That policy brought some $4 billion to the city. These issues were thrashed out in the 1970 campaign and the voters reelected you."

CULLERTON'S QUESTIONING was the most prolonged of the sessions, which continue at 9:30 a.m. today.

The assessor said accomplishments of the office since 1970 include yearly awards for excellence by the International Assn. of Assessors and the Civic Federation; a "policy of complete and open disclosure of our assessment methods;" formation of an internal complaint and audit section and opening of five suburban assessor's branch offices.

Murphy, who said he is seeking backing for assessor or any other post, praised Cullerton as a man "who is held for his integrity and honesty."

Murphy said that the assessor "should get out in the community . . . set a moral tone." He said that he will publicly disclose his net worth and campaign contributions if slated.

KUSPER said he has hired suburbanites "to give the clerk's office a true cosmopolitan atmosphere" and has opened "lines of communication with suburban township and village clerks." Suburban clerks will be invited to a seminar to explain workings of the county clerk's office.

Also appearing yesterday as candidates for the Tax Board of Appeals were incumbent Harry Semrow, Seymour Zaban, Nicholas Bosen, Antonia Herbert and Jerome Zuria.

be made subject to referendum.

BLAIR'S OFFICE, however, said the speaker would probably not insist on either provision in his meetings with Walker and Daley.

He said the referendum had not been considered by Republicans early in the debate on RTA because there appeared to be a consensus among legislators on the basic points. "When it looked like the elected representatives were pretty well agreed on principle, a referendum didn't appear necessary," said the Blair aide. He said the speaker later proposed a referendum because of the differences which developed over RTA funding, but indicated he would drop his insistence on a public vote if a legislative agreement was worked out.

He said the two-thirds funding proposal also entered the debate at a late stage, after Republicans raised the question of whether a major share of the money would go to the Chicago Transit Author-

Two Dominick's closing earlier

Dominick's Finer Foods stores in Des Plaines and Schaumburg will close two hours earlier as a result of the energy shortage.

A spokesman from Dominick's said that the two stores will close at 10 p.m. instead of midnight. Twelve other Chicago area stores also are affected.

"We're doing another survey to see what other stores we can close," said the spokesman. "We hope other people follow what we're doing to help curb the energy shortage."

Not all Dominick's food stores close at midnight. Hours are determined according to how much business is generated at each individual store. Dominick's began extending business hours to midnight more than a year ago.

Senate OKs energy crisis powers; aides give more gloomy forecasts

From Herald News Services
The Senate voted Monday to give President Nixon sweeping emergency powers to ease the energy crisis, including authority to ration fuels and relax clean air standards.

The action came while government officials were expressing fresh forecasts of gloom:

• One of Nixon's energy advisers told Congress that the administration is considering strict fuel conservation measures, including a nationwide ban on Sunday driving and rationing of home heating fuel.

• Congress also was told by Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen that Christmas mail could be seriously disrupted this year because of the energy crisis.

The emergency bill, which passed the Senate by a 78-6 vote, also would authorize Nixon to offer incentives for saving fuels and direct state and local governments to adopt conservation measures along the lines of the federal program.

These emergency powers, which Nixon requested, would remain in effect for one year under the bill authored by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., but Congress could revoke them after six months if the crisis eased.

The House Commerce Committee will resume consideration of similar legislation at the end of the Thanksgiving recess that ends next Monday.

Testifying before the Joint Economic Committee, Charles DiBona, Nixon's special assistant for fuel, said that more government regulations will be needed since present measures like lower speed limits will not save enough fuel.

He said the administration also is considering banning fuel for private boats and aircraft, limiting shopping hours, Sunday blue laws for all businesses, closing gas stations on weekends and termination of exterior gas lighting for decorative purposes.

DiBona said the administration was working "aggressively" on a gasoline rationing plan, but holding it back as a last resort.

Klassen said airlines already have cut some flights and are threatening to cut more which otherwise would carry mail, and the Postal Service's own trucks may be unable to get enough fuel.

These were among other energy-related developments Monday:

• A majority of the nation's Republican governors, meeting at Memphis, said they favored gas rationing over higher taxes.

• Treasury Secretary George P. Schultz said his "instinct is against" rationing but "the problem is such that we will have to take some sharp and decisive action."

• The White House said its Christmas lighting will be sharply reduced, and the Pentagon said all 10 assistant secretaries of defense will give up their Chrysler limousines for more economical cars.

• Spokesmen for the transportation industry said that despite the fuel shortage, Thanksgiving and holiday travelers should encounter "no special problem."

Market reacts: big plunge

NEW YORK (UPI) — A record number of stocks fell in one of the worst declines in New York Stock Exchange history as a stiffening Arab oil embargo tory Monday as Wall Street worried against the United States, a probable nationwide ban on Sunday gasoline sales, and a possible prohibition against Sunday driving.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a widely followed measure of 30 blue chip stocks, fell 28.67 to 862.66 — its fifth worst one-day decline on record. It was the largest drop since May 28, 1962, when President Kennedy faced down the steel industry on the issues of pricing, aggravating a 34.95-point fall.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index slid 3.17 to 100.71. There was a loss of $1.15 in the average price of a NYSE common share.

The ratio of declines to advances — 1,404 to 198 — set an Exchange record. There were 192 new lows, and only 2 issues setting new highs.

Since the Arab nations first announced their oil embargo one month ago, the industrial average has dropped 100 points.

The Arab oil producers vowed no letup in the embargo against the United States Monday, and tightened the squeeze on Japan, insisting Japan must break diplomatic relations with Israel to be exempted from the boycott.

In Europe, West Germany joined Belgium and Holland in a Sunday driving ban, and Britain cut delivery of all oil products by 10 per cent.

Saxbe nomination threatened; Ford draws criticism

by United Press International
Two of President Nixon's nominations encountered fresh dissent in Washington Monday:

• Assistant Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd said that Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, is ineligible to be attorney general and he urged Nixon to find a new nominee.

• A Democratic congressman testified in opposition to Rep. Gerald R. Ford, the first open criticism in Congress of his qualifications to become Vice President or succeed President Nixon.

Rep. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., told a House confirmation hearing that Ford has shown "an absence of leadership" in his 26 years in the House "and I don't think we'll ever see it from him."

The Senate Rules Committee scheduled a vote today on the Ford nomination. Approval was certain and could be unanimous.

Senate confirmation could come next week.

PROSPECTS FOR Saxbe's nomination are less certain. Byrd, chairing Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on the question of whether Saxbe is constitutionally barred from the post, said he opposed a bill introduced by the administration to remove the constitutional obstacle.

Asked if the President should look for a new nominee, Byrd replied: "In fairness to Mr. Saxbe, yes, I do."

At the heart of the controversy is a provision in the Constitution which says a member of Congress cannot be appointed to any civil office if the salary for that post was raised by Congress during his elected term. Saxbe was in the Senate when Congress approved a pay raise for attorney general from $35,000 to $60,000 in 1969.

The administration's proposed bill would circumvent that prohibition by reducing the salary to the pre-1969 scale of $35,000.

But Prof. Philip B. Kurland of the University of Chicago Law School told the committee he too thought Saxbe was ineligible and warned that if confirmed, the constitutional question "could jeopardize the indictments and convictions" obtained by the Justice Department under Saxbe's jurisdiction.

Saxbe appeared unruffled by the controversy of his nomination. "I'm a great believer in destiny," he told UPI. "If I'm destined to be attorney general, it'll work out."

Watergate evidence delay granted by Judge Sirica

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House Monday won nearly a week's delay in surrendering the first of President Nixon's subpoenaed Watergate evidence, pleading the illness of a lawyer made it impossible to meet a court-set Tuesday deadline.

The delay was granted by Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica within hours after the Senate gave final congressional approval to a bill extending the life of the Watergate grand jury — the eventual recipient of the presidential materials — for six months.

Sirica last Friday issued an elaborate time table for Nixon's surrender of seven tape recordings and various Watergate-related documents. It was to begin Tuesday when Nixon was to have given the court a "written descriptive analysis and index" of the subpoenaed materials to be provided over the next few weeks.

But a spokesman for Sirica said the White House had asked for and been granted until next Monday to submit the analysis and index because one of its lawyers, Samuel J. Powers, was hospitalized with pneumonia in Miami.

Meanwhile, the Senate passed by voice vote without opposition a measure granting Sirica authority to extend the tenure of the Watergate grand jury — due to run out Dec. 5 after a statutory 18 months — until next June 5. It had been requested by former Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson on behalf of the 23 grand jurors, who were reported anxious to complete their work.

At Key Biscayne, Fla., President Nixon relaxes at his home Monday assessing with top aides his 10 days of activity aimed at overcoming the credibility gap of Watergate. A White House spokesman said Nixon would be seeking out in the next days and weeks other forums in which to present his side on various charges raised against him.

The President flies to Memphis, Tenn., today to confer with 19 Republican governors. They unanimously adopted a resolution Monday praising Nixon for his "outstanding accomplishments" in international and domestic affairs and what was termed the President's determination to make "full disclosure" about Watergate.

Primary party-switching okayed by Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court struck down an Illinois law requiring a 23-month waiting period for voters who wish to switch parties in primary elections.

Justice Potter Stewart wrote in a majority opinion that Illinois method was an unconstitutional infringement on the right of free political association.

Associate Justices William H. Rehnquist and Harry A. Blackman dissented.

Under the law, a voter who participated in the primary of one party would have to forego future primaries for 23 months before he could vote in a primary of another party.

The decision upheld a ruling a three-judge federal panel in Chicago which held in 1972 that the law violates the 14th amendment.

The Supreme Court last term upheld a New York law which required a 30-day waiting period before a voter affiliated with one party could vote in the primary of another party.

But Stewart said New York's "delayed enrollment scheme" did not prevent voters from exercising a constitutional right to associate with the political party of their choice, "while the Illinois 23-month rule clearly does that."

"It clearly follows that the legitimate interest of Illinois in preventing 'chiseling' cannot justify the device it has chosen to effect its goal," Stewart said.

In other action, the court: — agreed to rule this term on lower court actions which could integrate Detroit area schools by transferring pupils between the inner city and the white suburbs, primarily by busing; — agreed to hear the claim of a white law student that the University of Washington is discriminating in favor of minority groups by favoring the admission of blacks.

Walker offered jobs 'for RTA votes'

by TOM LAUE

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. Daniel Walker has stripped legal job protection from thousands of state positions and offered them as a reward to legislators willing to vote for his regional transit proposals, lawmakers said Monday.

Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, cited a department of personnel memo dated Nov. 14 which said 30 state job classifications are no longer protected by the Civil Service Merit System.

The classifications range from automotive mechanic's helper to watchman and include some 3,000 positions in the Highway Department alone.

Personnel Director Nolan Jones said in the memo that the 30 job classifications are now exempt from Civil Service because the chief requirement for the work is "good physical condition" — not long experience or expertise.

Walker press aide Mark Clark said this is being done to help minority workers who complain they can't get state jobs requiring only manual skills because the Civil Service exam is too tough. Clark said the action was the result of weeks of work to meet affirmative action employment goals for minorities.

"I DON'T THINK there was any thought as far as we are concerned of using this in connection with the RTA," Clark said. "I didn't know of the date on the memo until today."

Clark said he understands no one now covered by the Civil Service code will be fired. "This only applies to those hired in the future when jobs open up," Clark said.

But Skinner said, "It sure looks like the real reason" for the memo was an all-out effort by Walker forces to pass the governor's plan.

Skinner scrawled the words "patronage politics, anyone? Or how to deliver

Board gives approval

County ID card system to be in operation soon?

A countywide identification card system may be in operation within a few months, primarily to help persons who don't have driver's licenses.

The Cook County board yesterday approved the voluntary card system proposed by County Clerk Stanley Kasper. The cards are expected to be used primarily by senior citizens and youths between the ages of 19 and 21.

Any person at least 18 years old who has been a resident of the county for 30 days will be eligible for the cards. There will be a $3 charge to cover expenses. An applicant will have to appear in person at the county clerk's office, complete and swear to an application, provide evidence of birth, identification and residency and pay the fee.

FRAUDULENT USE of the cards or alteration of them could bring a fine of $50 to $500 and imprisonment up to six months. Cards will bear photographs of the owners.

The county board still has to make arrangements to have the cards printed and procedures have to be set up before they will go into use. The ordinance is effective Dec. 1, but the cards will not be ready for an indefinite period of time.

The county board also deferred a decision on a new classification system for real estate assessment until amendments suggested by the state's attorney's office can be considered. The ordinance should be brought up at the board's next meeting. A special session of the board on Nov. 29 will deal with the county budget, which must be passed before Dec. 1, the end of the fiscal year.

the votes on RTA" atop the memo. The crucial vote on Walker's RTA plan came one day after the Nolan memo was circulated. The plan failed by four votes.

Supporting Skinner's charge were comments made Monday by one of the legislators who was being pressured most heavily by Walker forces to vote with the governor on RTA.

"I CAN'T REMEMBER who told me," said the lawmaker "whether it was Dave Caravello or Doug Kane, or even one of my House colleagues but the concept of the memo was mentioned to me the night of the RTA vote."

"They said things were going to be done in the personnel code to open up jobs and that it would be nice if these jobs could come to me and my friends," said the lawmaker, who asked that his name not be used.

Caravello and Kane are two of Walker's legislative liaisons who openly roam the House floor. They are there to advise members of the governor's stand on legislation and help out when they can. On votes of prime interest to Walker, they cajole members to vote with him.

Jones could not be reached for comment. Nor could Rose Jeter, the person in charge of Walker's affirmative action program.

Lumberyard workers return with new pact

Lumberyard workers who walked off their jobs last week have returned to work in the wake of a new three-year contract that will boost their wages to $7 an hour by 1976.

Nearly 800 laborers had struck at major lumber yards throughout the metropolitan area, including the Hill-Behan Lumber Co. in Arlington Heights and Edward Hines Lumber in Wheeling and Mount Prospect.

The strike, which for most men took effect last Monday, was settled late Friday afternoon, a spokesman for International Labor Union 260 said yesterday.

Tallymen, who count and load lumber orders, were working at a basic salary of $5.30. The union and the Lumber Trade Association agreed on a $1.70-an-hour increase over the three-year life of the contract.

The strike had a limited impact on branch lumber yards in the Northwest suburbs. Most workers were idled at the companies' main yards.

Home burglarized

The John Gokey residence, 593 Elmwood Dr., Buffalo Grove, was burglarized last week.

Police said the break-in occurred sometime after 8 p.m. Thursday. A neighbor noticed the rear door open about 9 p.m. Saturday.

It is unknown what, if anything, was stolen at this time. However, police said drawers throughout the house had been ransacked and several broken banks were found in the back yard.

Recreation programs planned at schools

Open recreation programs sponsored by the Wheeling Park District have begun and will continue through May.

The program gives youngsters a chance for drop-in recreation under adult supervision at their local schools. Time periods are set aside for different age groups, with parents being invited to watch or participate with their children.

On Monday, Sandburg School will be open for use. Field School will be open Tuesday evenings. Whitman School will be open on Wednesdays and Twain School will be open on Thursdays.

Youngsters from six to eight years are scheduled for activities from 6 - 7:30 p.m. From 7:30 - 9 p.m., activities will be geared for nine to 12-year-olds. Persons 13 years and older are scheduled from 9 - 10 p.m.

Each gym will have one adult and one student to supervise the activities which will consist of 10 minutes free time and one hour 20 minutes of organized games.

Cardholders can use it free

Bookmobile service for Vernon area

Bookmobile service to residents in the proposed Vernon Area Library District is scheduled to begin Thursday, Nov. 29, according to Frances Wilkins, secretary of the Vernon Area Library Committee.

Anyone who has registered for a Vernon Library card will be able to use the service free of charge.

The bookmobile is to be at Willow Grove School in Buffalo Grove from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. and at Kildeer School in Long Grove from 6 to 8 p.m. Nov. 29.

The following Monday, Dec. 3, the mobile library will be at Sprague School, Lincolnshire, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., at Aptakisic-Tripp School, Aptakisic, from 6 to 6:50 p.m. and at St. Mary's School, Buffalo Grove, from 7 to 8 p.m.

THE BOOKMOBILE also is to make weekly stops at the North Riverwood Center, Maple Hill Nursing Homes and the Riverside Manor rehabilitation center in Lake County.

The proposed library district's main facility at Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View is set to open in December.

The library originally was scheduled to open this month, but shelving has not yet arrived. The facility is to contain from 5,000 to 6,000 volumes, some of which have already been donated by other libraries and residents.

In addition to using the bookmobile service, residents who have obtained Vernon Library cards may use library services offered by any of the libraries in the North Suburban Library District.

Nearby NSLS member libraries are located in Wheeling, Libertyville, Mundelein, Lake Zurich and Barrington.

Karen Garland wears her gold baby ring for 'something old'

A tiny gold ring given to her at her baptism, was worn on a chain by Karen Sue Garland as her "something old" when she became the bride Oct. 27 of Kenneth Earl Vandeventer II.

Karen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Garland, 1317 N. Chicago, Arlington Heights, and Kenneth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Vandeventer, Compton, Calif., were married in a 2 p.m. double ring service in First United Methodist Church of Arlington Heights.

Karen's old-fashioned gown was of white organza with high neckline and bib yoke of peau d'ange lace. A wide flounce trimmed the hemline and the chapel train. A headpiece of peau d'ange held her veil and blusher, and she carried a colonial bouquet of white roses and blue-tinted baby's breath.

Deborah Garland, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Catherine Anderson, a cousin from Mount Prospect, and Rebecca Cheatham, Arlington Heights. All wore blue crepe gowns with bib yokes of white Swiss lace which also trimmed the sleeve ruffles. The girls carried colonial bouquets of blue-tinted carnations, bachelor buttons, poms, and corn flowers. Deborah and Diane Thomas of Arlington Heights, 8-year-old flower girl were in light blue, the others in dark blue.

JOHN GARLAND, brother of the bride, was best man, and ushers were David Bach, a cousin of the bride from Mount Prospect, and Gary Gerarda, Arlington Heights.

A reception for 125 guests was held in the church after which the newlyweds left on a three-week honeymoon in California. They are now residing in Arlington Heights.

A graduate of Arlington High School, Karen is employed at Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, Arlington Heights. Her bridegroom, who has been making his home in Arlington Heights, is with Littelfuse, Inc., Des Plaines. He studied two years at Long Beach City College and one year at the University of Southern California at Long Beach. He also spent three years in service.

Bending bridal ritual

by MONICA WILCII

It must have been an extremely traumatic experience for that poor lady, the Marshall Field's bridal registrar. I could tell she was trying very hard to maintain her poise and to remind herself that "the customer is always right."

Nevertheless, it was obvious that she seldom dealt with a bride-to-be like this. And, I must admit, it was really all my fault for trying to mix a little bit of convention with my accustomed individuality, thus breaking the cardinal rule of modern wedding ritual — "All or nothing at all." (Most inconsiderate of me to forget that department stores have a vested interest in the perpetuation of this custom!)

Anyway, there I was, in my commoner Levis, grubby sweater and hippie moccasins, telling this elegantly attired and bejeweled lady that no, I did not want 12 place settings of china, only eight, and no, I did not want any silver candlesticks at all nor any cut crystal bowls.

MY INTENT, which seemed logical enough to me, had been to limit my registration to the patterns of the dinnerware my fiancé and I had selected, the size of bedding we could use and perhaps a few color preferences. Since our wedding was to be a rather small, simple affair, attended not by the Rockefellers but by everyday folks, and held in another state at that, I saw no reason to get carried away "signing up" for things I neither needed nor wanted, nor would in any likelihood receive.

But alas, the woman understandably was accustomed to the more traditional bubbling bride-to-be eager to cram their apartments full of Marshall Field merchandise. And so she couldn't help but express surprise that I had no lists or notes with me to aid in remembering everything I wanted. She also was caught off-guard by the fact that I came ALONE. ("How unusual! The girls always bring either their mothers or their fiancés!") Well, my mother couldn't make the trip from Ohio for the event, and my fiancé seemed to think attending class was more important.

DESPITE THIS rather shaky beginning, she plunged spiritedly into the task of checking off all the little squares beside the myriad pieces of china, crystal, and silver (plate, I reminded her), reluctantly noting the number 8.

With frequent comments of "Surely, you'll want this" and "You'll definitely need that," the lady began to dull my resolve just enough that during a moment's hesitation on my part, she would already have the little square checked.

However, I managed to stand firm against an electric fry pan (I should throw out the one I already have just so I can ask for a new one?), an electric can opener (sorry, every home doesn't need one, especially during an energy crisis), mixer and steam iron (I already have those, too).

ALL OF THIS was, of course, disappointing to the now unnerved lady, but her astonishment could no longer be contained when we came to cookware and stainless flatware, both of which I also have. (I wisely decided not to mention that I had actually bought these items for myself in preparation for my eventual marriage. The bridal consultant might someday be interested in taking a course on ancient history and reading about those strange marriage customs called "hope chests" and "dowries." Even in recent times it is rumored that some people have purchased some of their own housekeeping equipment themselves.)

We now were ready to consider the sections labeled "Entertaining Accessories" and "Miscellaneous." Already feeling a bit burdened by all the things the list indicated I wanted, I determined to hold fast here. But I did permit the lady to list pewter pieces, which I have a weakness for, and a glass pitcher, which she enthusiastically listed as "crystal pitcher."

HOWEVER, NOT being able to talk me into any silver casseroles or ice buckets or card tables, she sadly surveyed the list and, shaking her head, lamented that I didn't "have very many things down, especially for showers."

It was, indeed, a pity that she had to get stuck with me when at the same time there were another girl and her mother in the salon revising her registry. Having been recently feted with a shower, the girl was eagerly telling the other consultant which gifts to check off as already in the bag, and what goodies she had forgotten to list on the already crammed registry sheet.

But my consultant nobly brought our interview to its proper close, presenting me with the Marshall Field gift registry book.

"When all those mountains of white boxes from Field's start coming in," she smiled brightly, "You'll want to keep track of them in this book and paste these corresponding numbers to the bottoms of the packages."

I nodded obediently and left, feeling a little like Alice emerging from Wonderland.

Tried and true recipe best

Dear Dorothy: That moment of the year is here again — and one has to plan ahead. Do you have any new casserole recipes for leftover turkey or chicken?

—Elizabeth Ann Oswald

Why must a recipe be new? The best are usually the ones with the best oven record. Take what I call "Turkey Delight." Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Cook one eight-ounce package of medium noodles in salted boiling water and drain. Then saute one-fourth cup of green pepper and one-fourth cup of minced onion in two tablespoons of butter or margarine until tender. Add one ten and one-half ounce can of either cream of chicken or cream of mushroom soup (undiluted), one cup sour cream, one-fourth cup milk, one-third cup sliced ripe olives, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and two cups diced, cooked turkey or chicken. Gently stir in the noodles and turn into a greased one and one-half quart casserole.

Sprinkle with one-fourth cup blanched, slivered almonds and one tablespoon minced parsley. Bake 35 to 40 minutes or until hot and the almonds are lightly browned. This should serve six, depending on the size of the appetites. Hope you'll find my title apt.

Dear Dorothy: I have difficulty finding my size in ready-made garments and so try to make my own. I received a cotton and polyester housecoat which I'll have to alter as sitting down "pulls" the material. There are seams on the sides, middle front and in the back. Where shall the alteration be made?

—Mrs. Kay W.

Let out the side seams and if you need any more width, use the back seam.

Dear Dorothy: Thought your readers might be interested in this tip. Any gelatin mold that's going to be turned out cold should be greased lightly with oil.

Vacation Villa

An economical, relaxed Jamaica visit

by CLARE WRIGHT

OCHO RIOS, Jamaica — We may have found the perfect vacation for persons who, like me, are naturally lazy and hopelessly addicted to sunshine, serenity and sea breezes.

It's a Jamaican villa vacation — where accommodations are as simple or palatial as you please — and include your own personal staff of maid, cook and gardener.

Expensive? Not if you do like we did and go in the off-season months — from April 16 through Dec. 15, and share the spacious villa with three other couples.

THAT WAY rental cost is less than $90 a week per couple, a fraction of the weekly tariff in a Jamaican resort hotel.

During winter months the rate runs around $200 a week per couple, approximately half the tab of a week's hotel stay.

Each Jamaica villa vacation property is privately owned, tastefully furnished, and beautifully located, with private pool and/or sandy beach.

Some villas are ideal for two families, possibly even three.

"Our" villa, Sea Grapes, (a short walk from Tower Isle Hotel in Ocho Rios) built high on a cliff overlooking the Caribbean, had four spacious air-conditioned bedrooms, each with private bath.

"Everybody into the pool!" That was our first thought the first minute we walked through the massive entrance doors of our charming "home by the sea."

THE POOL, surrounded by a palm-decorated courtyard, was only a few steps from the living-dining area.

Two of the bedrooms were also close to the pool. In fact, just stumbling distance for those of a mind for rolling out of bed for a wake-up plunge before breakfast.

Two more bedrooms on the lower level were reached by way of a palm-fringed wrought iron circular stairway with a spectacular sea view all the way down.

VILLA LIFE is being wailed on and catered to — without the stifled, institutional feel of a resort hotel.

"I don't know when I've felt so pampered," said one of our group.

Could be that our Dulcie's good Jamaican cooking and the gracious dispensing of "creature comforts" by our sweet-voiced maid, Maris, had a lot to do with his feeling.

But there's more to it than that.

VACATION VILLA, ideal kind of relaxing hideaway for persons who like to be pampered. Jamaica offers villas and cottages for rent at bargain rates that include the services of a household staff.

OTHER ATTRACTIONS available around Ocho Rios include:

• Dunn's River Falls — a gigantic waterfall that cascades over wedding-cake tiers of smooth rock down to the beach. It's 600 feet to climb and easier than it looks.

• Fern Gully — a rocky gorge of great depth with a road that zig zags for about four miles and takes you through a profusion of tropical ferns and foliage. Free.

• Green Grotto and Runaway Caves — marvelous caverns with spectacular stalagmite and stalactite formations. A guided tour is $2.20; children under 12, $1.10, under seven, free.

• Pineapple Place — branches of many of the island's major resort shops are here in the main shopping center of Ocho Rios. Imported bargains from all over the world. A native market is across the road where bargaining is the name of the game.

• Brimmer Hall Plantation Tour — at Port Maria, 21 miles from Ocho Rios, a fascinating first-hand look at a real working Jamaican plantation. Takes about an hour and a half ride on a com-

The one-week packages based on low air fares ($187 round trip from Chicago through Dec. 16, then $210 from Jan. 6 to April 30) include fully staffed villas with swimming pools and/or beaches, and a rental car with unlimited mileage.

Air Jamaica, which offers daily one-stop service to Jamaica, also has similar villa vacation packages.

Northwest suburban travel agents can supply you with more details.

Jamaican villa vacations are wonderfully casual and easy-going. You wear what you want, do what you want. Even skinny-dip at midnight under the stars, if you wish. The privacy is exquisite.

With the absence of TV, telephones and hustle-bustle, our group rediscovered the joy of group communication.

DON'T THINK we just died on the vine though. Whenever we craved a little more action than poolside conversation, we could hike the short distance up to Tower Isle Hotel, where all the guest facilities were ours for free — beach privileges, sailing, water skiing, snorkeling, bicycles, shuffleboard and tennis.

One night we dressed up and went dancing at Tower Isle and watched their floor show, also gratis to guests at Sea Grapes.

fortable open-air jitney through groves of banana, pimento, breadfruit, coconuts and cacao trees. Cost, $5.

JAMAICAN VILLA vacations were started six years ago by the enterprising Jamaican Association of Villas and Apartments (called JAVA).

Villas, apartments and cottages listed by JAVA are located in all parts of Jamaica — ranging from efficiency units to superb great houses.

The Jamaica Tourist Board, 36 S. Wabash, Chicago 60603, telephone 346-1544, has free brochures with pictures and details of villas, along with current rental rates.

Special villa vacations to Jamaica are also offered by Pan American World Airways, which has daily four-hour, nonstop flights to the island.

For those who can afford the fabulous!

Travel lore

by Clare Wright
TRAVEL EDITOR

PORT ANTONIO — Well, Cleo — you may have ruled the Nile — as you glided along on your fancy barge.

But me? I have just played Queen of the Rio Grande on a Jamaican bamboo raft built for two.

I actually DID feel like a real-life jungle queen as we floated luxuriously along the winding river past all sorts of atmospheric jungle scenery.

Shooting the rapids? Well, the Rio Grande kind might never make a Burt Reynolds flick, but for a natural-born coward like me it was just enough "white water" to provide all the thrills I needed.

The weather was what Jamaicans call "full sun" on the morning we headed off by private mini-bus with two other couples for Berrydale, on the banks of the Rio Grande, just south of Port Antonio.

THE DRIVE from Ocho Rios to Berrydale is a beautiful — but rugged one, with a good part of it running along the coast. As we came closer to Port Antonio we could glimpse the bamboo-clad peaks of the Blue Mountains.

At Berrydale we were greeted with a cluster of eager rafters and a contingent of young boys hawking cushions, Red Stripe beer and cokes.

Each 25-foot bamboo raft is manned by a "captain" who has made his craft with his own hands and is proud of it.

He also takes pride in his apprenticeship, consisting of six years of dragging the rafts upstream for five hours — back to the launching area.

AFTER COMPLETING this long haul he still has to pass tough health, police and ability tests to become a qualified "captain" working for the Jamaican Government.

Blissful and tranquil as it is for the passengers, rafting is hard work for the man with the pole. We could understand why all the rafters possess such slinky muscles in their arms and legs.

Civilization seemed far, far away the day our craft meandered languidly down the stream past a lush jumble of ferns, palms and feathery bamboos.

THE SEVEN-MILE trip takes about three hours. We delighted in variety along the way as each bend of the river revealed new sights and we passed close to steep banks of towering greenery, great bamboo and wild cane.

Now and then we came to foamy "rapids" to keep the trip interesting.

Here and there we caught glimpses of islanders fishing, swimming or doing the family wash on the rocks at the river's edge.

At one point our "captain" maneuvered the raft through a narrow, tree-fringed passageway.

He turned around and grinned at us.

"Tunnel of love," he said with a Jamaican lilt.

MIDWAY ON THE trip he stopped the raft near a beach and we slipped into the clear cool water for a refreshing swim. It was delightful.

End of the line is called Rafter's Rest. It's a pleasant place with an attractive restaurant-clubhouse where we sat on the terrace and drank cokes and tall cold glasses of Planter's Punch.

The tab for this pleasant three-hour glide down the Rio Grande river is $11, with an extra dollar for cushions and another buck or so tip for the skillful "captain."

YOU CAN ALSO take a Jamaican raft ride on the Martha Brae. This is a fairly new trip and lasts only one hour. You board at Rafter's Village, three miles from Falmouth (between Montego Bay and Ocho Rios). The cost is $10 for two on a raft.

Rafting on a placid river — where telephones, and even the memory of them, are a long way off — could become habit-forming, I think.

FUEL SHORTAGE and YOUR VACATION

Daily we are asked about airline schedule curtailment due to the energy crisis. Information given us is that a cutback by the scheduled airlines is being made first on schedules where there has been a continuous revenue loss due to too many flights . . . e.g. O'Hare — LaGuardia runs. After this a reduction is being made on charters, then on extra sections.

This makes it even more imperative that you book very early for a vacation trip. Please call ROBERTA FISHER TRAVEL AGENCY, Inc., 392-6320, for information and to make reservations — or come in to 14 E. North-west Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Q. — Can you tell me which Caribbean islands are the best for skin diving and snorkeling?

J. T., Palatine

A. — Cozumel is great, but not recommended for novices or first-timers. The Bahamas are good — with terrific instructors, clear water and beautiful underwater flora and fauna. The Buccoo Reef in Tobago is one of the best in the Caribbean.

Serve students first

If a single lesson can be drawn from the continuing crises between teachers and school boards in Maine Township this year, it is that dogmatic and rigidly ideological positions don't work at the bargaining table.

In Des Plaines Elementary Dist. 62 Sunday, teachers ratified a contract agreement — but only after an 11-month contract dispute with the Dist. 62 board of education.

Earlier, residents of East Maine Dist. 63 were subjected to the same kind of brinkmanship, with a contract dispute being settled only after teachers threatened to strike. In addition, the teachers and board in Maine Township High School Dist. 207 are locked in a court battle which may take months to resolve.

One of the basic issues in both the Dist. 62 and Dist. 63 disputes had been whether teachers have the right to have what they call "working conditions" spelled out in their contract. Working conditions, when used in a school setting, can mean anything from guarantees of certain class sizes to stipulations that teachers will be given an opportunity to apply for transfers as jobs in other schools become available. Sunday's Dist. 62 contract did indeed assure teachers of more of a voice in those working conditions.

Teachers seek these guarantees for several reasons. One is that they may distrust the school board and administration and want to make sure they have all policies in a contract enforceable in court. In addition, many teachers, particularly union leaders are committed to the idea that teachers must have a formal, guaranteed role in determining school policy — a role they believe can only be gained by obtaining formal board promises in writing.

Frequently, school boards faced with these demands from teachers take a dogmatic position. They will, as in the case of Dist. 62, say that they believe teachers should take part in decisions about education, but that they will put no guarantees in the contract because to do so would be to surrender board prerogatives to make policy.

As with nearly any dispute, there is some right and some wrong on both sides. Damage is done when either side becomes frozen into a position from which it cannot move. Since teacher demands for contracts which spell out working conditions have either come to most districts or will inevitably come to them, it is important to look at the places where flexibility should govern both sides.

Teachers, on the one hand, should temper their demands with the realization that the school board is elected by the public to run the schools. While teachers are certainly experts and should be consulted on policy, any school board must be careful to make sure it retains final decision making power on educational issues.

At the same time, however, school boards must realize that teachers are justified for asking for guarantees in their contracts.

Teachers, for example, deserve guarantees that they will be consulted on educational issues. The board that refuses to put that kind of guarantee in a contract and instead tells teachers to rely solely on the good nature of the board is not taking a realistic position in regard to teacher-board relations.

The extent of guarantees which should be accorded teachers in contracts — for example, whether class size guarantees are included — should be determined on a case-by-case basis by the school boards and teachers involved. That's the point of negotiations.

But the public, the people who pay the bills and who send their children to school, can be best served when boards and teachers stop arguing about whether any commitments should be included in a contract. A contract which spells out the obligations the board has to its teachers and the teachers' obligations to the board can and should serve to protect everyone — including those who are so often ignored in contract disputes, the students.

Taiwan: economic giant

by PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The United States is the only major nation still maintaining diplomatic relations with Nationalist China on Taiwan.

The only European nation still maintaining an embassy there is Portugal.

Among Nationalist Chinese it generally is accepted that some day the United States and Communist China will establish diplomatic relations, thus virtually completing the Chiang Kai-shek government's isolation. They would not have been too surprised if Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had announced a move in that direction after his latest visit to Peking.

Since President Nixon's visit to mainland China in 1971, the Nationalists have had to absorb many blows, among them ouster from the United Nations and a steady succession of nations withdrawing their recognition from Taipei and giving it to Peking.

The most important of these was Japan last year.

What makes it possible for the Nationalists to accept these events with calm is Taiwan's continuing phenomenal economic growth, the highest in the world without accompanying dangerous inflation. Her economic growth for 1973 may reach 12 per cent, with the cost of living increasing only about three per cent.

Her favorable balance of trade in 1972 came to nearly $500 million out of total foreign trade of about $5.5 billion.

She is ninth in the list of U.S. trading partners and moving up rapidly.

American investment in Taiwan is estimated at around $300 million with more coming in.

Three American banks opened offices there last year and more are on the way.

Both General Motors and Ford have heavy and increasing investments there along with other companies in petrochemicals and electronics.

Nationalist China's chief worries continue to be in the future.

The Chinese are disturbed by the gradual reduction of U.S. forces stationed on Taiwan and they realize their future depends in great degree on a continuing benevolent attitude on the part of the Peking government.

They also fear any developments which might lead to a loss of their export markets such as a growth of protectionism in the United States. (UPI)

Dorothy Meyer's column

Time for 'Making Things'

Here it is, not even Thanksgiving yet, and for the first time in my life I'm well into my Christmas projects. Well, maybe not exactly "well into" if you mean people who already have all their shopping done and gift-wrapped. And not exactly "for the first time" if you want to count all those years when my kids were little and I decided they should Make Things for their aunts and uncles.

Making Things in those days sometimes meant it was necessary to include a precise definition along with the "to" and "from" on the gift card — kids are so sensitive about their handiwork, you know. For instance, there was a year that an uncle said, "Oh look what John made for me, a nice ashtray," and John kicked him in the shins because it was supposed to be a pencil holder.

Last week history started repeating itself.

My daughter looked at an artsy-craftsy thing I'd just finished for our holiday decor and said, "Why'd you make a maypole for Christmas?"

And I said, "That's not a maypole, that's a Christmas tree."

She said, "You could have fooled me."

Dorothy Meyer

Hey! Why don't you haul out that old maypole you made for my eighth grade graduation — that looked pretty much like a Christmas tree."

"That was NOT a maypole, that was a big diploma so that loving relatives could put gifts, hopefully of money, to help defray the cost of your party, under it."

"Diploma! How about that. All these years I've been thinking it was a Maypole and wondering what the heck a Maypole had to do with a June graduation — you're sure that was supposed to be a diploma?"

It's been that way with my creative works for years and I should have quit when I was ahead — back when I was in kindergarten and I made my mother a pitholder which she instantly recognized as a pitholder.

That was the last time anybody knew what it was when I made something.

One year I handmade the Easter baskets for my kids and they thought it was something to wear.

Then there was the Christmas I knit a sleeveless sweater for my brother-in-law and he wanted to know why I made a man's sweater with ruffles around the neck. There weren't any ruffles, I just bound off the ribbing a little too tight and it kind of puckered. But he only wore it once because all the guys at work wanted to know why he was wearing a sweater with ruffles around the neck.

I don't have much luck with papier mache, either. Over the weekend I was suddenly inspired to create a centerpiece for our Thanksgiving dinner table and I made a papier-mache turkey. I must have the recipe wrong because it's turning sour and stinking up the whole house.

And Marilyn wants to know what a leprechaun has to do with Thanksgiving.

Rules usage explained

I have recently been the subject of criticism by your newspaper regarding my use of Robert's Rules of Order in a School Dist. 54 board meeting. Since your writer thought this use of rules was abhorrent, I think a response is appropriate.

We are governed by a republic form of government. As contrasted to a pure democracy where majority vote always rules, a republic form of government always has a set of adopted rules which may in some cases provide for a delay in action to insure proper treatment of the subject. This may be to the advantage of a minority or a majority, depending on who uses it.

The use of the rules for which I am criticized protected not only the minority but as well protected the majority, namely every taxpayer in the district. Fortunately, the delay enabled the board to get a legal opinion on the matter. The legal opinion showed that had the issue passed, overriding the use of the rules used in delay, then the district would be subject to potential legal liability to the detriment of the taxpayer.

When a board gives its word on an issue, it should stand by that word even if it takes only one member and Robert's Rules of Order to provide the vehicle for accomplishing that objective.

There is nothing wrong with having a reasonable set of rules and abiding by them.

Fuel crisis confusion

Subject: Commentary on suburbanites feeling energy "chill."

Having just finished reading the above mentioned article, we find that there are parts of it which really don't make too much sense.

In our opinion, if there is a gas heat shortage, that would mean, in essence, less gas to heat with. Now, in the middle of this particular article, it reads, many homeowners fortunate enough to have fireplaces are stocking up on cut wood or gas logs and many others are ordering new gas-fueled hearths for their home.

"People are buying gas logs, so if there is some problem they won't be without heat," reports the manager of the Garden House of Casual Furniture in Palatine.

We are wondering what they would plan to do with these gas-fired hearths, or the gas logs, if there is a definite gas shortage.

A few years ago we converted our wood burning fireplace to that of a gas fired fireplace, mainly as an ease in lighting and maintaining a fire, as such, but this still burns "gas," and in the event of a shortage where would the gas come from to maintain this gas burning fireplace? We, of course, could take this particular element out and go back to burning logs or wood or such, which is probably where the so-called aspect of the article stems from.

Needless to say, we are avid readers of the Herald and this is the first time we have found fit to write on any article appearing in it.

UNICEF 'distortion' criticized

A letter by Mrs. Nicholas R. Shuman (member of the board of directors of the Greater Chicago Area Committee for UNICEF) was published recently in the Herald in reply to a published letter by Gertrude Grozan. Mrs. Shuman disputes the fact that efforts have been made by UNICEF to turn over UNICEF money to Hanol to reward aggression. As evidence of proof, Mrs. Shuman mentioned anonymous official State Department bulletins. Now let us review some real published facts.

According to the Los Angeles Times for May 14, "The U.N. Children's Fund has a go-ahead for a new program of postwar aid to Indochina that could cost $30 million the first year. The UNICEF executive director, Henry R. Labouisse . . . said he wanted $3 million to expand present aid to South Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos, and might need $30 million in the next year if North Vietnam and the Vietcong accepted his offers of assistance." In short, UNICEF is gearing up to send nine times as much assistance to the Communist terrorists in Indochina as to their victims who are fighting to retain their freedom!

The New York Times for August 5, reported: "North Vietnam has begun negotiating for assistance from the United Nations Children's Fund following a visit to Hanol by two senior officials of the aid agency . . . They said Hanol officials had also discussed aid needed for 'long-term reconstruction.' Such aid reportedly was to be discussed again during the coming months." Apparently, because of widespread opposition in the U.S. to sending foreign aid to North Vietnam, UNICEF is to be used as a "back door" through which these Communists are to be rewarded for their atrocities. (For example, it was at Dak Son that the Vietcong turned their flamethrowers on 250 helpless women and children in an intentional premeditated act of terrorism.)

Let us start telling the facts as it really is — without distortion. Let us stop slanting the truth by leaving out facts or giving misinformation.

The Lions' 21st Annual Candy Day has been concluded and, thanks to the fine publicity received, the citizens of Illinois opened their hearts and pocketbooks to make this the best Candy Day ever. Your enthusiasm in informing your public of the Candy Day story, coupled with a benign and reasonably benevolent weatherman, helped swell the Candy Day total collected.

It would be presumptuous of us to try to improve on the gentle wisdom of the immortal Helen Keller who wrote, more than 50 years ago, "I appreciate the sweet thought which made you wish to help others. In these troublous times there are constant requests for assistance, and every little help is precious. You have done a good deed. Do another, and then another, and you will sow seeds of happiness in this sad world. This is the way to find gladness and beauty in life."

Time to stop ignoring the executive wife's position

THE HERALD Tuesday, November 20, 1973 Section 1 —11

by LEROY POPE
NEW YORK — One of the biggest headaches of American business today is the executive wife, says a prominent psychiatrist.

The traditional notion that a corporate wife should go where her husband's company sends him, uprooting herself and the children without complaint, now is under attack, according to Dr. Robert Seidenberg in a book entitled "Corporate Executives — Corporate Casualties?"

The best solution to the problem of the corporate wife may be "to eliminate her," Seidenberg writes, "and her demise is not far in the future."

That doesn't mean successful executives should be bachelors and play the field for feminine companionship, he says. Nor does he advocate a return to an era early in this century when many American companies forbade salesmen and younger executives to marry and fired them if they did. Laws and court decisions put an end to that.

Business today

BUT SEIDENBERG says that no American corporation now is able to structure its executive family without taking into account the attitudes and rights of executive wives.

He believes that the much published executive rat race is a lot rougher on corporate wives than on their husbands, that this is grossly unfair and women no longer will tolerate it.

The present system, enforced in some states by laws that say if a wife refuses to follow her husband to a new post she is guilty of abandonment and no longer entitled to support, causes many women who are so uprooted "to feel less than human and to become ripe for tripping, tripping and tranquilizing."

These uprooted corporate wives now realize, says Seidenberg, that their troubles do not result from their own inadequacies but from a system that denies them independence and self-expression.

Seidenberg said industry has not yet awakened to the problem. Too many companies still order sudden executive transfers without regard to the effect on a man's family and put him on the shelf on the theory that he lacks devotion to his job if the executive refuses to go for family reasons.

A TELLING FACT about the situation, says Seidenberg, is that when he asked 50 companies for their opinions on what qualifies an executive's wife should have, not one mentioned intelligence.

Like the armed services, most companies look on executives' wives as persons to be ignored if not treated as outright encumbrances, the psychiatrist said.

He feels conditions of the typical executive's marriage are unfair to the wife in other ways. His life is more stimulating, not only mentally but sexually. "A day spent launching a project or running a seminar is more likely to be sexually stimulating than an evening spent sharing TV or going over the kids' report cards," he writes.

He also notes that the executive gets "attention from secretaries and airline stewardesses, the luxuries of first-class hotels, expense account, filet mignon and other privileges" the wife can't share.

She becomes identified in his mind "with inferior hamburgers and loses out in the competition between home and room," Seidenberg says.

Major illness can bring financial disaster

by CARLTON SMITH
How family financial ruin can result from the costs of a major illness has again been emphasized by a study of 115 middle-income families, many of them literally reduced to poverty within less than two years.

If anything can dramatize the need for the best possible hospital and medical coverage, it's this study, made earlier in the year by Cancer Care, Inc., and the National Cancer Foundation. Many families studied were financially devastated by illness costs which ran as high as $30,000.

Even the best insurance coverage, unfortunately, can only minimize the family's financial burden. Though all but three of those studied carried typical family hospital and medical expense insurance, about half of the 115 families studied incurred costs that exceeded insurance reimbursements, often by many thousands of dollars.

FOR EXAMPLE, 97 families had costs of more than $10,000, yet only 45 received insurance payments of that much.

All were cases of advanced cancer. The average cost per family was $20,700. Half of the families had annual incomes of less than $10,000.

Family income was $15,000 or more for only about 18 per cent of those in the study — 18 families. The family with the highest income, $30,000, accumulated costs of $75,550 over a period of three and a half years.

Families were "reduced to poverty" or "driven to the verge of bankruptcy" in many cases, the study found.

Financial hardships resulted in "early retirement of the well spouse, depletion of lifetime savings, change of career and life plans loss of home and other assets." The financial devastation, plus the emotional trauma of a terminal illness, made for an experience variously described by family members as "a living hell," a "time of horror and helplessness" and "a very real experience in hell."

ONE CLEAR MESSAGE of this shocking study is every family's need for good major medical insurance. Such policies pick up when basic hospital and medical coverage runs out, typically paying 75 or 80 per cent of the remaining bills. They commonly cover up to $25,000, though some provide coverage up to $75,000 or more.

The basic problem, however, is that not even the best insurance coverage can protect the family against severe economic hardships in the event of catastrophic illness like that covered in the cancer study.

Nearly a third of the total costs were for expenses almost never covered by any kind of insurance. The need for medical homemakers, special equipment, the care of children, patient transportation, nurses and nursing home care, even special clothing for patients, added up to a list of 23 categories of "services and needs related to essential care of the patients," the study concluded, "that are not usually covered by insurance."

THESE 115 FAMILIES had one problem in common. They were all middle-income families.

Such families don't qualify for assistance from public or governmentally supported agencies. It might seem logical that families, when struck by illness costs of this magnitude, should qualify for the same relief extended to whole communities that are declared disaster areas by the federal government following hurricanes, floods and other natural disasters. But families don't.

No one's yet sure about cause of ulcerative colitis

Read an article by you about the lady with diarrhea problems. I have had a problem for about a year which has been diagnosed as ulcerative colitis. This problem bothers me possibly four or five times prior to 8:30 a.m., possibly once in the afternoon, and some times, but not always, a couple of times at night.

I would certainly appreciate any suggestions that you might have to correct this problem. In fact, there is not a word that would handle the appreciation.

And I wish there were a ready solution to your difficulty as well as for all the many other people who have this problem. Ulcerative colitis is a difficult problem to treat. I'm glad you are seeing a doctor regularly. Not all cases of diarrhea are ulcerative colitis, and it takes a good examination to be sure what the problem really is.

The doctor says

Ulcerative colitis is not caused by an infection. In fact, its cause remains obscure. Some doctors have considered the possible role of infectious agents in contributing to or causing the problem, but for the most part it is generally agreed that this is not the main consideration in most cases.

There are many complicated facets to the treatment of ulcerative colitis. What's done depends upon the individual case and how much trouble is actually occurring.

I WOULD only make a few suggestions that can be general comments for individuals with your problem. Eliminate all milk and milk products from your diet. For some reason it seems to make these problems worse or actually precipitates attacks. Also, as a trial effort, eliminate all sources of gluten from your diet. That means all cereals except rice and corn.

Pessimism pays off for Pete

Pessimistic Pete looked over the dummy and remarked, "I'm glad a trump wasn't opened. A lucky player would be able to set up dummy's clubs; pick up the trumps and make seven. I'm going to try to play as safely as possible for six."

It was well that he didn't try for seven. Actually the least bit of careless play on his part and he might not have made six.

Pete won the diamond in dummy and promptly played the ace of clubs. Then he cashed his ace and king of hearts and led a third heart.

West discarded a diamond and Pete ruffed in dummy. He returned to his hand by leading a diamond to his ace and ruffed his last heart. He led a low club from dummy and ruffed it with his king of trumps. His last diamond was ruffed by the ace of trumps. This series of plays had established West's queen as the high trump but that high trump was the only trick for the defense.

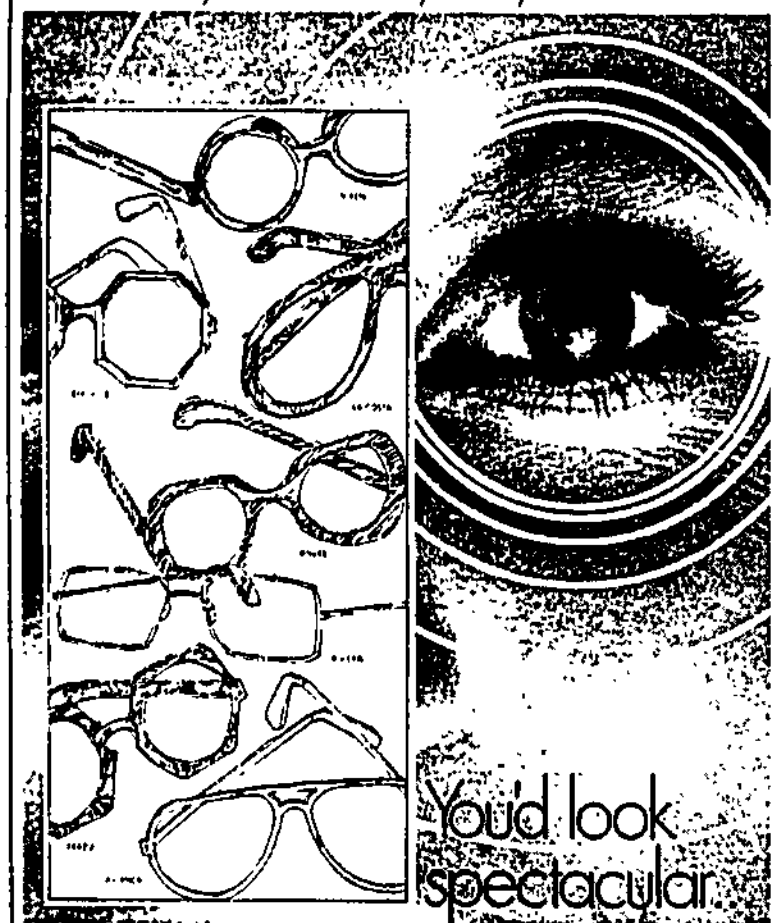

A trump lead by West would have defeated the slam, but as it was Pete only made it because of his pessimism.

He has to cash dummy's ace of clubs before leading the third heart. Otherwise, West would have been able to discard his one club and ruff the ace. He also had to ruff the first club with his king of trumps to keep West from overruffing and leading a trump back.

1959	39,700

THE STATISTICS above tell us only the total decrease in dealerships in the last 23 years. It does not tell us the total number of dealers that STARTED business and QUIT while the dealership group declined just over 23,000. Nor does it tell us how many used car firms CAME and WENT in the same 23 years. I wouldn't wonder if the total number of dealers, new and used, car and truck, that started and quit in the 23 years approached the 100,000 mark.

DURING the same 23 years 192,524,169 new cars and trucks (and more than likely the same number of used cars and trucks) were sold by new car and truck dealers ALONE.

WHY, you ask, did so many dealers come and go? That question is on the lips of many people who would fault free-enterprise. After all, the automobile and truck industry is one-sixth of our whole national economy. If such a giant portion of a free-enterprise economy cannot conduct its affairs in a stable manner what IS the future of free-enterprise?

WE need an historical perspective here. Geologists tell us the earth is about 4½ billion years old. Life, so they say, in the form of the single cell amoeba, evolved from primeval gases 3½ billion years ago. The first creatures with a central nervous system (spinal cord and brain) appeared ½ billion years ago. Mankind, representing 100 trillion cells working in close harmony, evolved only 5 million years ago. Earliest cave man remains date back 50,000 years while recorded history goes back only 6,000 years.

OUR perspective is this. What man knows of management as a science is only 25 years old. AS A MATTER OF FACT, EARLY MANAGEMENT

TEXTBOOKS WERE LITTLE MORE THAN VALIANT ATTEMPTS TO DESCRIBE WHAT KIND OF ORGANIZED HUMAN TEAM EFFORT WAS MORE EFFECTIVE AND EFFICIENT.

POOR MANAGEMENT is the KEY reason for dealership mortality; it is NOT free-enterprise that lacks. Any social system, whether it be welfare state, socialism, communism or free-enterprise — must be managed. And management is, oh so new a science.

MANAGERS plan, organize, staff (hire and fire) direct and control land, capital and people. In the case of the automobile industry, there is excellent planning and organizing. Auto dealers have come unglued when it comes to hiring the right people and directing and controlling their activities.

WE have learned many hard lessons. We are improving rapidly. I foresee several decades ahead of a stable well managed dealer group who handle stupendous volume efficiently and effectively. The better we do that job the more you the consumer wins because less dealer turnover means a reduction in your vehicular net cost.

Harper faces rugged challenge in opener

By DON FRISKE

Mr. Bechtold, your first assignment, should you choose to accept it, is to play the number one team in the nation in 1972-73, Wright Junior College.

Roger Bechtold, coach of the Harper Hawk basketball team, really has no choice at all about playing the Wright team because that's the way the schedule was written.

The Hawks open their regular '73 season tonight at 7:30 at Wright.

Bechtold, though, doesn't think that Wright is as good now as they were last year.

"From what I've heard, they're weak at the guard positions, because they lost both of their starting guards from last year," said Bechtold.

The Hawk coach still feels that Wright possesses a potent attack, with defensive rebounding as their main strength.

"If we beat them, it will be a great accomplishment for us," commented Bechtold.

Even though the Wright game does not count in the Skyway Conference standings, Bechtold will be doing everything possible to win.

"You have to go into every game with a winning attitude," said Bechtold. "Of course, we'd rather lose these non-conference games."

The Hawks' first conference game will be against defending Skyway Conference Champions, Lake County.

It will be a home game, as the Hawks have finally found a permanent nesting spot. All Hawk home games will be played at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights.

"I think it's good to finally have just one home court," said Bechtold. "At least the fans will know where our games will be played."

Bechtold sees Lake County, Wau-bensee, and Triton as the teams to beat for the Skyway title this year.

"We have a real good chance for the championship this year and I'm real optimistic," said Bechtold. "Our overall ball handling is our major strength, and we also have some good shooters."

Bechtold is concerned with the Hawks' rebounding so far from what he's seen in the pre-season practices.

"We're just not doing a good job on the boards," explained Bechtold. "We've practiced and practiced on it, but we won't really know what we've got until we get in an actual game situation."

The Hawks are also not exceptionally quick, according to their coach.

"That's something that's hard to overcome," said Bechtold, "but good alert play can resolve that problem."

Bechtold coached three years at Evanston High School, two years on the sophomore level and one year on junior varsity. He also coached freshmen for two years at Southern Illinois University before coming to Harper.

This is Bechtold's second season as coach of the Hawks.

Sticking to the basic 1-3-1 set offense, the Hawks will also be using the same type of man-to-man defense they've used in the past.

"We'll also be running the fast break as much as possible," added Bechtold.

Dave Seymidt at 6'9" will be returning as the Hawks' center.

"Dave had a strong finish last season, so we're just hoping he can pick up where he left off," said Bechtold.

Steve Heldt (Hersey) and Chuck Neary will also be returning for the Hawks at the forward and high post positions, respectively.

Two freshmen have broken into the starting lineup. Tom Marzee from Wheeling will be at the point position with Mike Millner from Elk Grove filling in at the other forward position.

Steve Schmidt (Wheeling) and Brian Groth (Prospect) are two other freshmen who have looked good to Bechtold.

"Both of these boys have a chance of breaking into the starting lineup for us," said Bechtold.

Vikings rush, rush, rush to another fine campaign

by KEITH REINHARD

Maybe it was just a question of Christmas coming early to Fremd in 1973.

Whatever the case, it was the season of the Big Rush for coach Al Ratcliff and his Viking bunch.

That all this groundwork was being laid by the Vikings in September, October and early November rather than the usual Yule time, was just one of several ways in which the '73 team differed from previous Fremd outfits.

To be sure, there were still some of the regular Ratcliff trademarks like the solid defense, the tendency to be opportunistic and the offense leaning much more toward the run than the pass.

But except for possibly Nob Moloznik back in 1968 and Joe Alden last year, the Vikings have not produced any awesome individual rushing threats. The trend has been toward the team effort and the fundamental offensive drive that slowly and patiently worked its way along the turf.

This year, then, not one but two hard-hitting backs came along and it was nothing but rush, rush, rush. Keith Cumminsley led the league in scoring and Tom Bullen ranked fourth in rushing average and between them they accounted for nearly 1,400 yards of ball lugging as Fremd finished up with another winning campaign (5-3) and put a few new school records on the board to boot.

Speaking of boots, there was another Christmastime tendency of the Vikings that did not fit in the normal pattern of things. That was a leaning toward benevolence — the spirit of giving — and it wasn't nearly as well received as Santa Claus.

There were 18 Fremd gifts on fumbles over their eight-game slate. It was more than enough to justify having cost the Vikings a shot at the North Division crown and caused Ratcliff to shudder even weeks afterwards.

"It was about the only part of our season that I wasn't too pleased with," the coach pondered. "It wasn't so much the fumbles themselves as the field position we gave up with them on a number of occasions. They definitely cost us a few touchdowns."

In response to the miscues, Fremd and Cumminsley and Bullen namely, simply went out and scored more touchdowns themselves. New school standards were logged for most yards in a single season (1993) and most points (183).

This method worked against most opponents but it backfired in one crucial game against Hersey where bobbles primed both TD's for the opposition in a 13-7 setback.

The Vikings also dropped their finale at Rolling Meadows and had to settle for third place in their division with a 4-2 mark but Ratcliff did not blame this one on fumbles. "We just stopped playing football in the second half. It was our only letdown of the season but a costly one since Meadows naturally took it to us."

Hersey and Rolling Meadows were the glum spots along the road. The Vikings also fell to Lake Park in one of their two non-conference outings but Ratcliff remembered the Lakers as a team who simply overpowered them. "Our team members almost to a man voted them as the hardest-hitting team we faced all season too."

There were more bright moments than dim ones, however, including a victory in the conference's first overtime contest (against Palatine) and a super second half effort that overwhelmed hosting Arlington near the end of the season.

There were also the fine individual showings such as the ones by Cummins-key and Bullen (both two-way standouts) along with Joel Keller, Rick Spineolas, Rich McManus and Steve Dwyer, among others. All but Dwyer achieved all-conference recognition while Steve and Rick were picked as honorary team captains.

Bullen was voted the team's most valuable player after setting a new school single season rushing record at 789 yards. Keller was named the team's "hardest hitter" and Cumminsley set a school standard for scoring in one season with 74 points.

Ratcliff also had more than a few words of praise to toss out about his quarterback Mark Otteman, noting, "In addition to running the team offensively he played our toughest defensive position all year long. He's the kind of real hard-nosed athlete that I enjoy coaching."

Of course, Ratcliff just enjoys coaching football, period. And the cleats and hip pads were barely stored away for '74 when the mild-mannered mentor started beaming about next season.

"I'm really looking forward to it," he said adding, "Our outlook is excellent, and of course, this new state playoff tournament is going to add even more excitement."

Ratcliff pointed out that more underclassmen were subjected to solid varsity experience this autumn than in all but one previous year since his arrival at Fremd. Additionally, the nucleus will be fed by a junior varsity unit finishing up with a standout 7-1 record.

Now if all these youngsters will just hold off on a Christmas present to Ratcliff until about November of next year ...

Forest View finishes with 5-3 mark

So very close . . . to a banner year

by JIM O'DONNELL

Would-be Goliath haters had a banner year following the football fortunes of the Forest View Falcons this season.

Even Goliath would have had a problem with the Falcons 1973 if he believed what area coaches and writers said about them in August and September. Forest View was selected as the overwhelming favorite in the Mid-Schaumburg League South Division chase and potentially as one of the area's top teams.

But time and pressure have a way of making everyone mortal and the Falcons were no exception this year. They lost three conference games and wound up an also-ran third in the South with a 3-3 MSL mark, 5-3, overall.

It was a difficult way to start for first-year varsity head coach Fred Lussow, but he had only praise for his team. "I'm disappointed with the record, but not the season."

I couldn't ask for a better team to coach in terms of attitude and feeling.

Lion, Cardinal swimmers open in St. Viator pool

If this year's matchups between St. Viator and Arlington are like last season's, these swim meets should be something special.

In their dual meet, the Arlington Heights based parochial school won 54-41 over its cross-town rival. It wasn't as easy the second major meeting.

Going down to the final event in the district tournament, St. Viator just edged out Arlington 201-109. It was the first district trophy for the Lions; the first second-place finish for the Cardinals.

With this in mind, Arlington and St. Viator will open their seasons this afternoon at the Lions' pool, beginning at 4:30.

Both schools will also meet on Wednesday at the Deerfield Relays with St. Viator hosting its own annual relays on Saturday.

East girls beat Glenbrook, 84-79

Team captain Bonnie Gallagher had a 7.4 all-around average as Moline East's varsity girls began their second gymnastics season, defeating Glenbrook North, 84-79, this past weekend.

Gallagher achieved the meet's highest score with an 8.1 in vaulting. Her other results included 7.55 on balance beam and 7.7 in floor exercise.

Mary Winkel averaged 8.4 in all-around and won floor exercise with a 7.85. Sue Nicewick scored 7.45 for her floor routine.

Gallagher's 7.55 plus Winkel's 7.35 and Dobble Lepitch's 6.85 helped the Blue Demos score well on balance beam. Cindy DeVito added a 7.15 on uneven bars and Chris Bartolucci scored 6.1 in vaulting.

Moline coach Betty Axelsson said: "The gymnasts are looking more elegant and graceful this year. The girls are just now starting to give their routines a polished and perfected look."

East will compete in a six-school tournament on Saturday, Dec. 8, after dual meets with Moline North (Nov. 27) and Glenbrook South (Nov. 30).

John Kronforst

Craig Brinkman

Our big problem this year was handling the pressure. We tried too hard, pressed too much, at key times in big games."

That last comment is not one of those typically evasive, general statements that coaches are prone to make when trying to explain a bad break. Forest View had some of the type of breaks that make cheerleaders cry, fathers curse, and coaches develop ulcers. "Against Elk Grove," Lussow observed, "we had a touchdown called back just before the half. Against Schaumburg, they were trying a field goal to win the game and we jumped off-side. The ball is moved in five yards, they kick it, and it clears the crossbar by five inches. So we lose by one point. The breakdowns at crucial times killed us."

Amid all the hullabaloo about what a great season Forest View was going to have back when the leaves were still on the trees, Lussow voiced caution. "I definitely figure us to be a factor in the South Division race," he said in September, "but I don't quite see it as the one-horse race others are making out of it."

Not that Lussow was downplaying the talent on his ballclub. "If there was any team in the league that could challenge Hersey this year," he opined in retrospect, "it was Forest View. Hersey beat us and they were the best in the league. I think we were the second best."

Just as Goliath had no shot at an immediate comeback, so too for Forest View in 1974. The Falcons will lose 20 out of 22 starters through graduation, including two of the top players in Falcon annals, halfback John Kronforst and line-backer Craig Brinkman.

Kronforst bettered his outstanding junior year, gaining 1052 yards during the eight-game Forest View season. He garnered 855 yards in MSL action, which coupled with last year's 795 yards rushing mark, formerly held by Jim McGraw of Conant with 1603 yards. Kronforst's 1650 yards came in just two seasons of varsity play.

"I just can't say enough about John," Lussow said. "Few people know that he played hurt with a variety of injuries in seven of our eight games. He still did a spectacular job. The injuries seemed to make him try harder. I have nothing but admiration for his courage."

Brinkman was no slouch either in the eyes of his mentor. "Craig is the best all-around player in the league, and I think that the college recruiters would agree. We could have played him almost anywhere. He's just a great kid to have in the program."

Another Falcon singled out for laudatory comments by Lussow was fullback Ken Holan. "Ken is one of the best high school blocking backs I've ever seen. Kronforst got the big yardage but it wouldn't have been possible without Ken. I'd bet that Holan successfully blocked 85 per cent of his assignments."

Joining Brinkman, Kronforst, and Holan on the all-conference team were center John Douglas and lineman Mike Petran. "Petran was an outstanding two-way performer for us and Douglas handled the pivot extremely well."

Other graduating seniors who Lussow listed among the key losses included tight end Kurt Haaland, who led the team in receptions, Rod Klobbass, Mim Volanti, Bill Capizzano, Bob Graham, Tim Mincey, and Bob Drueger.

Key returnees for Lussow and assistant coaches Joe Macarol, Darryl Phillips, and Bob Henderson include guards Tom Deyn and Ken Meek, and running back Dave Matz.

Lussow is looking forward to his second year at the helm of the Forest View varsity despite the high loss through graduation.

"I got my feet wet this year and I feel good about football and the kids. Next year we'll be looser and can try some new things." He adds an ominous prelude to 1974.

"Next year will probably be a rebuilding year for us. Don't forget, though, that this was supposed to be a rebuilding year for Elk Grove." And he concludes, almost wistfully, "And look what they did."

Big three—Walker, Daley, Blair—meet in RTA summit

by BOB LAHEY
After nearly a year of political in-fighting over competing plans for a Regional Transit Authority, the state decision-makers scrapped all plans and have returned to Square One.

Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker, Republican House Speaker W. Robert Blair and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, the three who must ultimately agree for any RTA plan to be adopted, yesterday began a series of meetings to iron out their differences on mass transit.

The summit talks were agreed to only after the Democratic leadership finally became resigned — after holding state legislators in session until the early hours Saturday morning — to the fact that they could not beg or borrow the three or four more votes they needed to pass Gov. Walker's RTA plan.

SO CLOSE WERE the Democrats to getting the 107 needed votes, they thought, that Victor DeGrazia, Walker's chief lieutenant, cranked up the state transportation apparatus to provide Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, a flying trip to her home district and back to the capital for the anticipated vote.

While the House leadership held reluctant legislators in session Friday afternoon, DeGrazia was informed that Mrs. Chapman planned to leave Springfield for a fund-raising testimonial dinner in her honor.

Alarmed that her absence might mean the difference in the 107 votes needed to put the governor's RTA plan over, DeGrazia ordered a state police car to chauffeur Mrs. Chapman to the Springfield airport. She was then flown in a state plane to O'Hare Airport where another state trooper waited to take her to the Arlington Heights Elks Club.

After an abbreviated visit to the dinner, Mrs. Chapman returned to the waiting patrol car. Rushed back to O'Hare, she was flown back to the Capital, arriving at the House about 10:45 p.m.

The vote never came, however. BY THE TIME Mrs. Chapman arrived, the Democrats had abandoned hope of passing the Walker plan and were maneuvering to adjourn the House with the measure still technically alive.

Over the protests of weary and impatient legislators, House Democratic Leader Clyde Choate, with the assent of Blair, won approval of a motion to adjourn until Sunday afternoon, still nursing the hope of a weekend compromise.

By mid-afternoon Saturday, according to a spokesman for Blair, it became finally apparent the Walker plan was dead and Blair contacted Daley with a summit-meeting proposal.

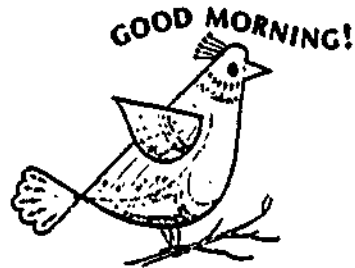

Blair and the mayor agreed, the spokesman said, that the time had come for "everyone to back off and take a new look at the whole thing."

The intent of the negotiations, he said, is that none of the principals (Blair, Daley and Walker) enter into them "anything that is not negotiable."

Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, assistant minority leader in the Senate, said yesterday that Senate Republicans, however, would insist on two provisions in any RTA bill — that two-thirds of the money raised for it be spent in the county where it is collected; and that the bill

'Tax lag would cause financial problems'

Formation of a new fire district called impractical

Most of the members of a special fire committee in Buffalo Grove said yesterday the idea of forming a new fire district, which would take in the entire village, would be impractical.

The idea to form a new fire district was made last week by Trustee James Shirley. It was suggested as an alternative to the committee's recommendation which suggested the entire village transfer to the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District. Along with Shirley, several other board members and the village manager feel the idea should be looked into further.

Members of the committee, however, said one problem in forming a new district would be the tax lag which would occur after it was created. Because of this lag it could be as long as a year before the district would get any tax money to support its operations.

"Actually, we discussed this before we made our report," said Dick Quinlan, a committee member. "At that time we decided that it was not financially feasible. We were probably remiss in not putting it in our report," he said.

TRUSTEE Edward Osmon, chairman of the committee, said because of the tax lag and lack of operating funds, the village would probably be called on to subsidize the district for one year. He and other officials have said the village's general fund is already overburdened.

"We had looked into forming a new district," Osmon said. "I think it would be fiscally irresponsible to even consider starting one."

Quinlan said if the village forms a new district, it might as well go one step further and form a municipal department. "Forming a new district calls for almost as much money as it would to go municipal," he said.

Village officials have said although they would prefer forming a municipal department it is not financially feasible at this time.

BUFFALO GROVE Fire Chief Wayne

Winter, another member of the committee, said if the village forms a new district, there could be legal problems if the village attempts to subsidize it. He said it is illegal for one taxing body to supply money to another taxing body.

"It's a form of double taxation," he said. "The village is taxing people so they can provide them with services, but fire protection is not one of them. All it would take is one guy to threaten a law suit and the village would cut-off the fire district."

Henry Harms, also a member of the committee, said he favors going to the Wheeling district because "it often allocates more money to the village part of the district than its residents pay in taxes."

"The Wheeling district usually gives Buffalo Grove more than its share back. I don't think we can afford to go any other way," Harms said.

TONY BERG, a trustee for the Long Grove district, said his district has not decided whether it would favor forming a new district. "We can't really say yet. We're studying it and will make a decision later," he said.

Berg, however, has said the district will resist transferring part of its territory to the Wheeling district. "If we let Wheeling take part of our land now, what's to keep them from taking more and more land at a later time?"

The Long Grove district, Berg said, would not fight attempts to take its land for a municipal department, but does not want the area transferred to another fire district.

CURRENTLY, HOMES north of Checker Road are served by the Long Grove Rural Fire Protection District, while the rest of the homes are served by the Buffalo Grove Fire Department Inc., which is employed by the Wheeling District. A portion of undeveloped village land is in the Vernon Township Rural Fire Protection District.

To eliminate the three-department system as well as serving as a "steppingstone" to a municipal department, the committee suggests the village disannex from the Long Grove and Vernon Districts, into the Wheeling district.

The Vernon district said it agrees with the proposal "in concept," but wants to study the impact the loss in tax money will have on the district before making a commitment.

The majority of the village board last week favored the committee's recommendation, but agreed to look into the feasibility of forming a new fire district. Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said he is studying the matter and will make a recommendation prior to the Dec. 10 board meeting.

Police seek lawn vandals

Buffalo Grove police are searching for a white car with stolen license plates in connection with several weekend incidents in which lawns and parkways were vandalized.

Police said the car was spotted by a routine patrol about 12:44 a.m. Saturday. It had two occupants, believed to be in their 20s, police said. Police left the scene while a check of the license plates was made.

After learning the plates were stolen, police returned to the scene but the car was gone. There were, however, ruts in the parkway at 541 and 551 Checker Dr. Other ruts were reported later at 1071 Twisted Oak Ln., 550 Burnt Ember Ln., and 850 Twisted Oak Ln.

Saturday night, a car driving on lawns was reported at 700 Stanford Lane and at 1326 Mill Creek. A witness told police she saw two beige-colored cars, each with two persons in it.

Vandalism at parks through fall was 'minor'

Vandalism at local parks has been reduced since a rash of incidents last summer.

Park Director Stan Crosland yesterday said vandalism this fall has been relatively minor, with most damage in broken windows at Emmerich Park.

Several incidents at Willow Stream outdoor pool and other park facilities last summer prompted park officials to seek additional police surveillance and to take other measures to increase security.

About $450 in stereo and scuba diving equipment was stolen from the bathhouse at Willow Stream outdoor pool in July. Dye was also dumped in the pool in another incident.

SEVERAL break-ins were reported over the summer at Emmerich Park as well as a large number of broken windows and outdoor lights. In every case, local children were believed responsible for the damage.

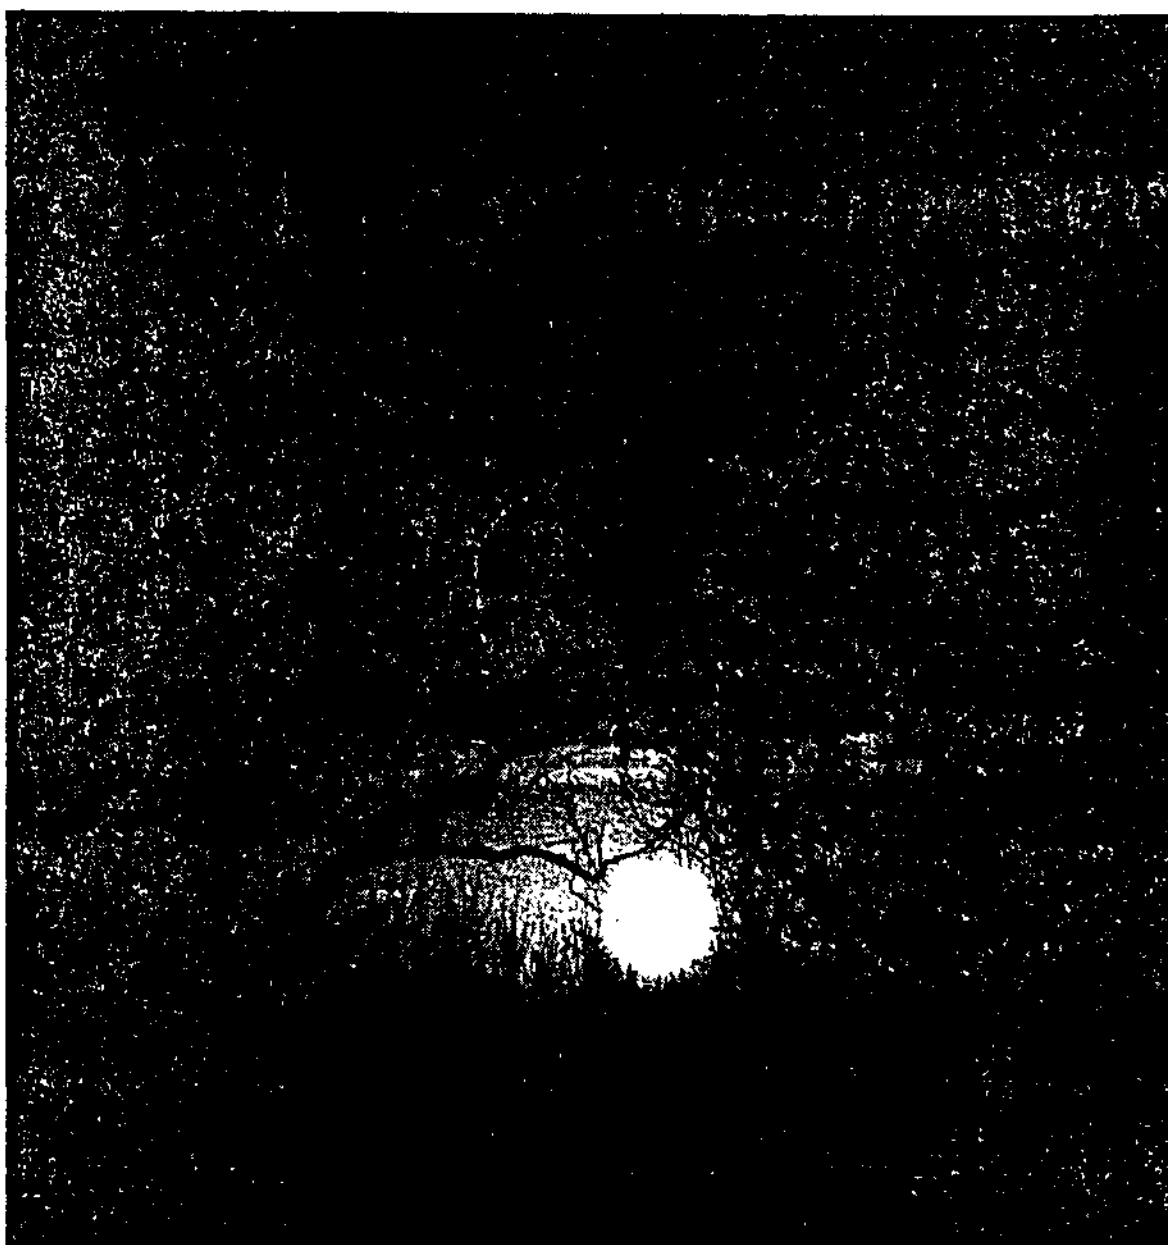

Following a series of incidents, local police stepped up their patrol of local parks and outdoor lighting was left on all night every night at Willow Stream Park. Crosland said these measures as well as attempts to involve more adults in evening park programs have probably limited vandalism.

"The more you can involve adults in evening activities, the less likely there will be vandalism because having adults around discourages kids from that kind of thing," Crosland said.

ASIDE FROM A few broken windows at Emmerich Park, Crosland said the only expensive damage to parks caused by vandals this fall has been at Kilmer School park. Children have apparently been climbing on baseball backstops there, he said, causing the wire fencing to tear. It will cost an estimated $245 for repairs.

Crosland said he feels the reduced amount of vandalism at Buffalo Grove parks indicates residents value park facilities and activities. "I think people have had an appreciation for parks and programs," he commented.

Planners to consider Hank Farm annex

A request to annex the 86-acre Hank Farm for multi-family development will be considered tonight at a public hearing by the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission.

The Centex Homes Corp. has proposed building 940 units on the tract, which is north of Chevy Chase Country Club between the Soo Line R.R. tracks and Milwaukee Avenue. The project, to be called Winston Park North, consists of 580 townhouses and 360 apartments.

The project, which is in unincorporated Lake County, was approved last month by the Lake County Board. If Buffalo Grove decides not to annex the property, Centex could still build the project under county zoning.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS are interested in annexing the development because they would have some influence over the plan. If the project is built under Lake County zoning the village would have virtually no say over what is built.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said recently village officials also are interested in the project because they feel the village is better equipped than Lake County to provide utilities and services to it. If the project were to remain unincorporated, Larson said the village would probably still be called on to perform some of its services.

Although the project has been approved by Lake County, Larson said the village will deal with it the same way as all other annexations. The village will negotiate with Centex in an attempt to obtain certain concessions it feels are important, Larson said.

Larson said no severe problems are anticipated because the project generally conforms to the village master plan.

A problem, however, could arise between Centex and School Dist. 102. The district has already reached an agreement with the developer for a $40,000 donation.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS, however, said the agreement is only good if the project is built under county zoning. If the project is built in Buffalo Grove, they feel Centex should be bound by a village resolution that requires developers to make donations relative to the number of students that will be added to the school system.

If the resolution is enforced Dist. 102 would probably get at least $80,000 from Centex, while High School Dist. 125 would probably get more than $30,000.

Village officials said they are unsure whether Centex could be legally held to the resolution. The village plans to have its attorney look into the matter. Centex officials have said they are not sure if they would attempt to annex to the village if they were forced to make a larger donation.

The Lake County Board rejected the development last year after Riverwoods, which is east of it, raised objections because of the proposed density. The Lake County Circuit Court, however, ruled the development could not be turned down if it conformed to county zoning ordinances.

Since last year Centex has reduced the number of units, but has refused to go below the 940 now planned. The public hearing on the matter will begin at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Vernon Bookmobile Service scheduled to start soon

Bookmobile service to residents in the proposed Vernon Area Library District is scheduled to begin Thursday, Nov. 29, according to Frances Wilkins, secretary of the Vernon Area Library Committee.

Anyone who has registered for a Vernon Library card will be able to use the service free of charge.

The bookmobile is to be at Willow Grove School in Buffalo Grove from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. and at Kildeer School in Long Grove from 6 to 8 p.m. Nov. 29.

The following Monday, Dec. 3, the mobile library will be at Sprague School, Lincolnshire, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., at Aptakisic-Tripp School, Aptakisic, from 6 to 8 p.m. and at St. Mary's School, Buffalo Grove, from 7 to 8 p.m.

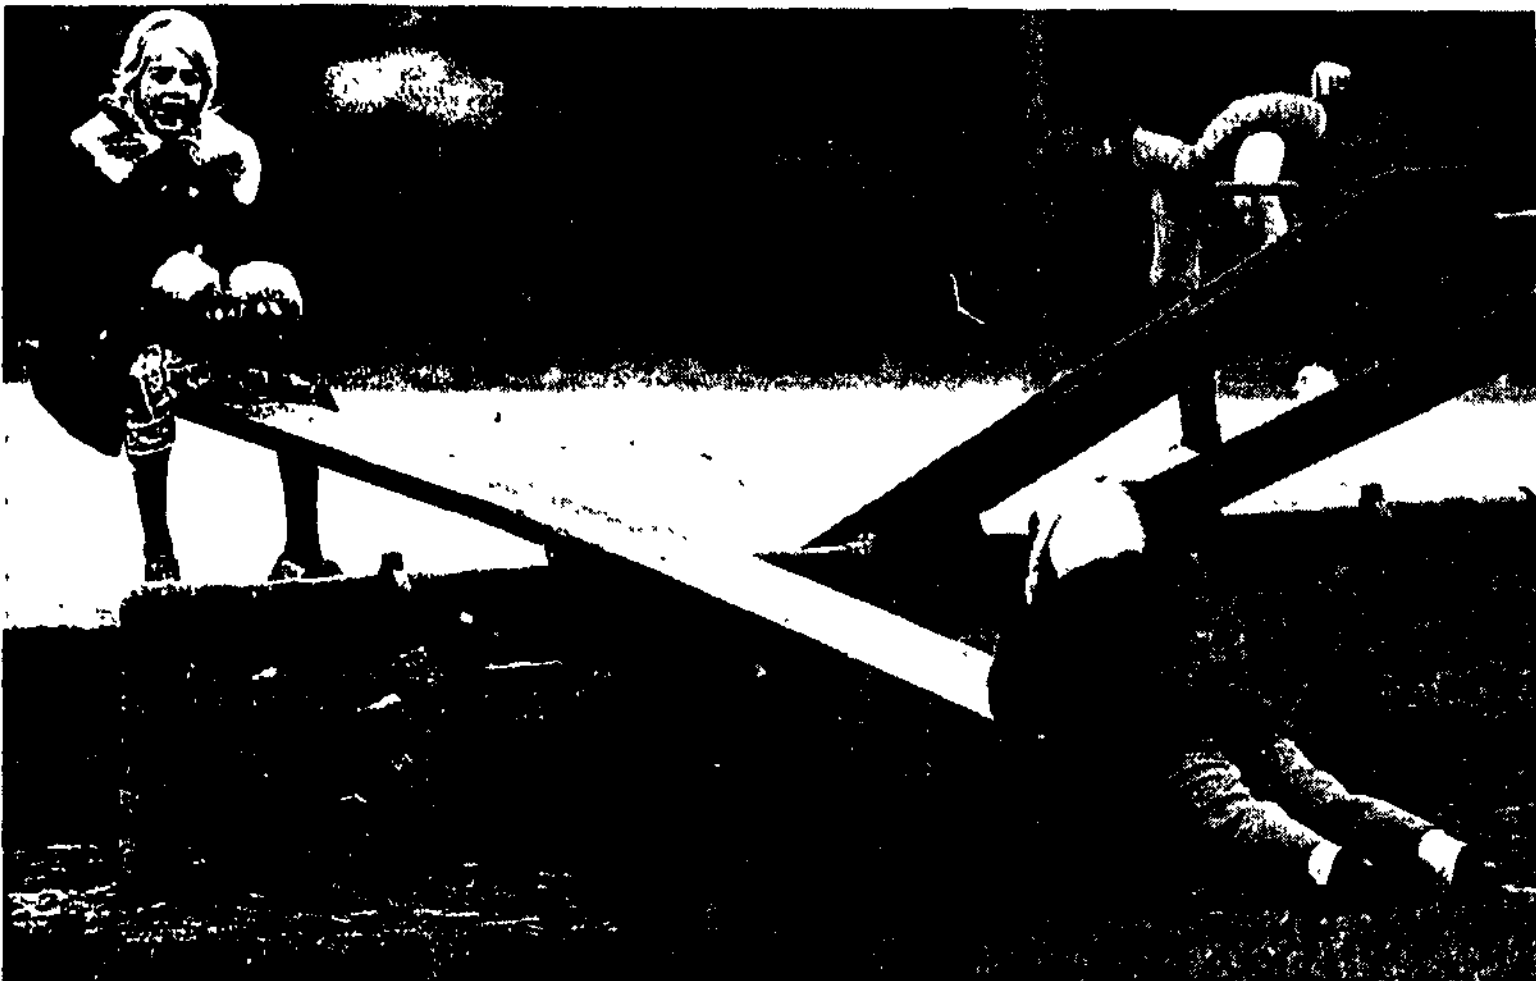

Center, Maple Hill Nursing Homes and the Riverside Manor rehabilitation center in Lake County.

The proposed library district's main facility at Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View is set to open in December.

The library originally was scheduled to open this month, but shelving has not yet arrived. The facility is to contain from 5,000 to 6,000 volumes, some of which have already been donated by other libraries and residents.

In addition to using the bookmobile service, residents who have obtained Vernon Library cards may use library services offered by any of the libraries in the North Suburban Library District.

Nearby NSLS member libraries are located in Wheeling, Libertyville, Mundelein, Lake Zurich and Barrington.

A BIT CHILLY, but the kids at Alcott School in Buffalo Grove still manage to get outside at recess and have fun on the teeter-totters. The playground equipment is kept up all year for the kids to have fun during that all-important morning break.

Poll response 'tremendous'

Survey results: hospital needed for area

Results of a survey to determine the need for a hospital in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area indicate a positive response to a proposed 200-bed hospital. Statistics from the poll will be announced by Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon later this week.

Norman Davis, consultant for the proposed hospital under study by the Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital, said he completed the survey analysis this weekend and has sent a copy of the report to Scanlon.

"From the standpoint of response," Davis said, the survey was "tremendous." Of the more than 5,300 surveys mailed to Wheeling residents, Davis said the village received nearly 1,500 back.

"The main thing we were seeking was the medical habits of the area," he said. "Basically what we were trying to figure out was where they were going and to what extent they were going."

DAVIS SAID DETAILS of the survey would be made public by Scanlon. He indicated, however, that the survey seemed to indicate a reasonable need in the area for a hospital.

Scanlon said he will wait until after Thanksgiving to release the results so he will have a time to review the survey. "I know the complete report of the survey, but I have not received a copy of the complete analysis," he said, "I want to look it over."

The village president said he will soon be setting up a reviewing committee to screen applicants who wish to serve on the proposed hospital's board of directors. Scanlon said he has received a number of applications for the position, but is still seeking more interested persons, particularly in Wheeling.

Four of the directors will come from Wheeling and three will come from Buffalo Grove. Scanlon said he worked through St. Mary's Church and the newspaper to attract Buffalo Grove residents for the directors' posts.

ACCORDING TO DAVIS, the board of directors is needed before any applications can be made for the hospital. The consultant said even after the preliminary planning work is completed, the hospital may run into problems when plans are submitted to area planning associations.

"There's probably a 90 per cent chance that the planning agencies will turn us all down," Davis said. He said these area planning groups are not in favor of new hospitals being developed, but look instead to the expansion of present facilities.

Currently, representatives of the Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital are negotiating for the Childerly Retreat House property at 508 McHenry Road for the proposed satellite hospital. Davis said to his knowledge, nothing has been settled on these negotiations.

Some residents in Wheeling have expressed concern that the hospital is considering Childerly a possible site. They said the property is valuable for both historical and recreational reasons, and also said a hospital would aggravate already serious traffic problems on McHenry Road.

Home burglarized

The John Gokey residence, 593 Elmwood Dr., Buffalo Grove, was burglarized last week.

Police said the break-in occurred sometime after 8 p.m. Thursday. A neighbor noticed the rear door open about 9 p.m. Saturday.

It is unknown what, if anything, was stolen at this time. However, police said drawers throughout the house had been ransacked and several broken banks were found in the back yard.

Vandals set fire

Vandals apparently used two flares, a glass lampshade and a cherry bomb to set a footbridge on fire at Cambridge On The Lake over the weekend.

The fire, a minor one, was out before Buffalo Grove firemen arrived. Police said they feel vandals set the fire.

Stevenson Yule dinner tickets still available

Tickets are still available for the Elizabethan Christmas Dinner Dec. 9 at Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View.

Beginning at 5 p.m., Madrigal Singers dressed in medieval costumes will recreate the drama of the traditional feast with song and courtly dances.

Bringing in the boar's head, hanging of the greens and strolling carolers are a few of the ancient English customs to be portrayed.

The menu for the dinner will include appetizer, beef wellington, vegetables, savories, beverage, wassail and steaming plum pudding.

Tickets are $7.50 per person and orders should be mailed along with a check to Elizabethan Christmas Dinner, Mrs. Walter Topel, 25 Plymouth Ct., Deerfield, Ill. Orders are processed on a first-come, first-served basis.

All proceeds from the dinner will be used to establish a music scholarship to be given to the outstanding senior member of the Stevenson Madrigal Singers.

Lumberyard workers back with new pact

Lumberyard workers who walked off their jobs last week have returned to work in the wake of a new three-year contract that will boost their wages to $7 an hour by 1976.

Nearly 800 laborers had struck at major lumber yards throughout the metropolitan area, including the Hill-Behan Lumber Co. in Arlington Heights and Edward Hines Lumber in Wheeling and Mount Prospect.

The strike, which for most men took effect last Monday, was settled late Friday afternoon, a spokesman for International Labor Union 260 said yesterday.

Tallymen, who count and load lumber orders, were working at a basic salary of $5.30. The union and the Lumber Trade Association agreed on a $1.70-an-hour increase over the three-year life of the contract.

The strike had a limited impact on branch lumber yards in the Northwest suburbs. Most workers were idled at the companies' main yards.

Bison Boosters seek new members

The Buffalo Grove High School Bison Boosters are seeking interested parents to participate in activities of the newly formed group.

The purpose of the booster club is to foster enthusiasm and spirit among parents to bolster athletes involved in all high school sports. The club also raises funds to provide equipment and supplies for student athletes that are not taken care of by the school.

Formed in September, the booster club has approximately 200 members. Revenue for projects has been obtained through memberships, sale of hats, jackets, buttons and decals and donations for coffee provided by the club at home football games. The group also received a generous donation from the Wheeling High School Spur Club.

Through the efforts of the booster club, a telephone has been installed in the athletic department to allow athletes to call home free, buses to away games have been subsidized and camera coverage and electrical power for loud speakers at football games have been provided.

The booster club also has made commitments to assist other sports-oriented high school groups including the drill team, pom pon and baton corps.

Regular meetings of the booster club are conducted on the first Monday of each month. The program for the Dec. 3 meeting will be the introduction of winter sports coaches, who will give brief presentations on their programs for the upcoming season.

Big three—Walker, Daley, Blair—meet in RTA summit

by BOB LAHEY
After nearly a year of political infighting over competing plans for a Regional Transit Authority, the state decision-makers scrapped all plans and have returned to Square One.

Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker, Republican House Speaker W. Robert Blair and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, the three who must ultimately agree for any RTA plan to be adopted, yesterday began a series of meetings to iron out their differences on mass transit.

The summit talks were agreed to only after the Democratic leadership finally became resigned — after holding state legislators in session until the early hours Saturday morning — to the fact that they could not beg or borrow the three or four more votes they needed to pass Gov. Walker's RTA plan.

SO CLOSE WERE the Democrats to getting the 107 needed votes, they thought, that Victor DeGrazia, Walker's chief lieutenant, cranked up the state transportation apparatus to provide Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, a flying trip to her home district and back to the capital for the anticipated vote.

While the House leadership held reluctant legislators in session Friday afternoon, DeGrazia was informed that Mrs. Chapman planned to leave Springfield for a fund-raising testimonial dinner in her honor.

Alarmed that her absence might mean the difference in the 107 votes needed to put the governor's RTA plan over, DeGrazia ordered a state police car to chauffeur Mrs. Chapman to the Springfield airport. She was then flown in a state plane to O'Hare Airport where another state trooper waited to take her to the Arlington Heights Elks Club.

After an abbreviated visit to the dinner, Mrs. Chapman returned to the waiting patrol car. Rushed back to O'Hare, she was flown back to the Capital, arriving at the House about 10:45 p.m.

The vote never came, however.

BY THE TIME Mrs. Chapman arrived, the Democrats had abandoned hope of passing the Walker plan and were maneuvering to adjourn the House with the measure still technically alive.

Over the protests of weary and impatient legislators, House Democratic Leader Clyde Choate, with the assent of Blair, won approval of a motion to adjourn until Sunday afternoon, still nursing the hope of a weekend compromise.

By mid-afternoon Saturday, according to a spokesman for Blair, it became finally apparent the Walker plan was dead and Blair contacted Daley with a summit-meeting proposal.

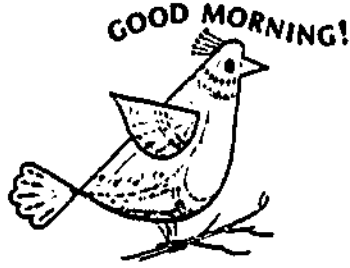

Blair and the mayor agreed, the spokesman said, that the time had come for "everyone to back off and take a new look at the whole thing."

The intent of the negotiations, he said, is that none of the principals (Blair, Daley and Walker) enter into them "anything that is not negotiable."

Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, assistant minority leader in the Senate, said yesterday that Senate Republicans, however, would insist on two provisions in any RTA bill — that two-thirds of the money raised for it be spent in the county where it is collected; and that the bill

Education association leader praises his boss

by LINDA PUNCH

When Elementary School Dist. 62 teachers ratified their new contract Sunday, they publicly praised a man they'd criticized the last 11 months — Supt. Eric Sahlberg.

John Pacay, president of the Des Plaines Education Association, told teachers that "we wouldn't be here considering this tentative agreement if it hadn't been for Dr. Sahlberg."

"A lot of pressure was applied but he did come through. I think we should keep this in mind in the days ahead," Pacay said.

During negotiations, Sahlberg came under fire from teachers who claimed

Eric Sahlberg

the superintendent was "not trustworthy." Teachers cited Sahlberg's withdrawal of a teacher dismissal time of 3:40 p.m. at the beginning of last school year as an example.

ACCORDING to teacher association members, the board verbally agreed to the dismissal time only to have it rescinded by Sahlberg. The superintendent later granted the dismissal time after recommendations from principals and a teacher-administrator committee.

Teachers also criticized Sahlberg for not taking an active role in negotiations like his predecessor Leon Smaage. In the past, Sahlberg preferred to remain neutral as outlined in negotiation guidelines.

Dennis Anderson, chief negotiator for the DPEA, said Sahlberg "rectified a wrong."

"Nothing would make me happier than for Dr. Sahlberg to come out of this smelling like a rose — I think he did," Anderson said. "I think we should forget any ill feelings we had in the past."

BOARD NEGOTIATOR Stuart Kisten also praised Sahlberg's last-minute efforts to bring a settlement.

"The board felt it was through his efforts that both sides were able to arrive at a final agreement," Kisten said. "Certainly he had a big part in bringing the two sides together."

Sahlberg declined to comment on his part in negotiations, other than to say he was glad an agreement was reached.

"If I made any contribution to achieving an agreement between the board and the DPEA, I was very happy to do so," he said.

The school board was expected to ratify the new contract agreement at a special session last night.

Suburbs may unite to save open space

Organizers of the effort to prevent apartment development of Rob Roy Golf Course have virtually given up hope of obtaining federal funds to buy the 180-acre course.

Instead, the Village of Mount Prospect, the River Trails Park District and five other area park districts plan to work together, possibly through a bond referendum, to raise the $8 to $9 million purchase price.

If that plan proves unfeasible, Mount Prospect officials indicated they would try to strike a bargain with the proposed developer of the golf course, Kenroy Inc., of Skokie, to allow some apartment construction while retaining the rest of the golf course as open space.

The alternatives were discussed Saturday in a luncheon meeting of 28 persons representing the involved groups.

Participating in the discussion were representatives of the villages of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Wheeling, and the Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, River Trails and Wheeling park districts. The Arlington Heights Park District previously had expressed interest in the effort, but did not attend the meeting.

ALSO PRESENT were staff members of U.S. Representatives Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Samuel Young, R-10th, who said the congressmen are "firmly committed" to keeping Rob Roy "green." The two Illinois senators, Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson, did not attend the

Wonderwords

Lady poet laureate of Illinois has a few for hopeful writers

by BOB GALLAS

"Don't ever throw a scrap of anything you write away. The time may come when you'll decide to use it."

That was just some of the advice given to the prospective poets and writers at Elk Grove High School yesterday by noted poet Gwendolyn Brooks. The poet laureate of Illinois and first black woman to receive a Pulitzer Prize in poetry visited the school yesterday to read some of her work to a school assembly and later meet informally with poetry-minded students and teachers.

Miss Brooks, who's been heralded as the "true voice of the black slums," quickly established a rapport with her young audience by reading the short, humorous works of her favorite authors, that dealt with subjects such as school and young love.

She also read some of her own works, covering everything from abortion to religion to the Chicago Picasso.

MISS BROOKS, who has lived in Chicago virtually all of her life, met with students after the assembly to answer questions and give advice to those interested in writing.

She referred to poetry as a "process of distilling."

"For example, if you were writing about a love in your life, you wouldn't put down every little detail. Rather, you pick out the choicest elements and put them down on paper," said Miss Brooks.

Chosen to succeed Carl Sandburg as poet laureate in 1968, Miss Brooks has since organized an annual contest for student poets throughout the state. She had awarded two prizes of $250 each to the best entries but now chooses the 20 top entries which she has published.

Some of her works that Miss Brooks read included:

— "The Mother"
Abortion will not let you forget.
You remember the children you got that you did not get.
The damp small pulps with a little or no hair.
The singers and workers that never handled the air...
I have heard in the voices of the wind the voices of my dim killed children...
You were born, you had body, you died.
It is just that you never giggled or planned or cried...
Believe me, I knew you, though faintly, and I loved you All.

— "We Real Cool"
We real cool. We meeting or send representatives, though both had been invited.

Rob Roy Golf Course is bounded by Camp McDonald Road on the north, Euclid Avenue on the south, Wolf Road on the east and Wheeling Road on the west.
Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Telchert, who chaired the meeting, noted at the outset that federal funds, which the groups had been counting on most for financial assistance, are "very limited and, for practical purposes, not available."

Robert Jackson, president of the Mount Prospect Park District, agreed. "We might as well write off" federal and state monies, he said.
Jackson suggested that the Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights and River Trails park districts consider merging to form a single large structure rather than approaching the problem individually.
OTHER ALTERNATIVES discussed at the meeting:

- Forming a corporation consisting of the various park districts and floating bonds to raise the necessary price to buy the land.

- Opposing any development of the golf course, other than single family residential, thus forcing Kenroy to seek multi-family zoning from Cook County.

- Contacting state senators and representatives for their aid, though the likelihood of obtaining special legislation is slim, according to Roger A. Bjorvik, an attorney for many of the park districts.

None of the participating groups have made a financial commitment toward buying Rob Roy, though Tom Mahon of the Des Plaines Park District said the question of how much each district will be expected to chip in is crucial.

ALL OF THE park districts have endorsed the concept of keeping the golf course as open space, but some may not be able or willing to pay the price.

It had been indicated earlier that if the full purchase price cannot be raised, the park districts may be willing to buy part of the golf course instead.

The Mount Prospect Park District is the only park district in the group that currently operates its own 18-hole golf course, though Des Plaines has a 9-hole Par 3 course.

Joint ownership and operation of Rob Roy by the various districts would allow residents of those park districts access to the course.

'Doll Fashion' contest set

Five winners of the annual First National Bank of Des Plaines "Doll Fashion" contest will be chosen through public voting conducted at the bank, announced bank president Arthur R. Weiss.
"The response to our public voting selection method has been so popular over the years that we feel this is still the most effective way. The public has been extremely enthusiastic and the contestants appear to be pleased with the results," Weiss explained.

Ninety-six uniquely dressed dolls will go on display at the bank from Nov. 23 through Dec. 4. Balloting will take place through Dec. 1. Everyone in the Des Plaines area is eligible to vote and ballots may be obtained from the teller windows or service desks.

Voting for the five winners will be on the basis of the best dressed dolls in costumes of any type. Each winner will receive $25. One prize will be awarded to contestants 15 years old and under, and the other four to entrants 16 and older.

At Christmas, the dolls will be distributed to needy children by the Des Plaines Woman's Club.

Green Bay man arrested, to face rape charges

Police arrested a Green Bay, Wis., man yesterday and charged him with raping a Des Plaines woman last week.

Sven Ebsen, 35, was captured by Des Plaines police near Lee Street and the Soo Line R.R. tracks after police spotted his auto which matched the description of a car given out over Illinois State Emergency Police Radio Network (ISPERN).

According to reports, Ebsen assaulted the woman twice over a period of several hours while visiting her in her apartment.

POLICE SAID the two had met each other through a business contact.

Ebsen was reportedly staying at the Des Plaines Holiday Inn, Mannheim Road and Touhy Avenue near where he was spotted by police yesterday.

Ebsen was being held on $10,000 bond yesterday and has been scheduled to appear in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Dec. 6.

Des Plaines woman killed in collision in Forest Park

A Des Plaines woman was injured fatally early Sunday when her auto apparently ran a stop sign at an intersection and collided with another car in suburban Forest Park.

According to reports, the victim, Mary Vasilinda, 24, of 2039 Pine St., was driving eastbound on Franklin Street, approaching the intersection of Franklin and Harlem Avenue, when she apparently drove through the stop sign.
Her car was struck by an auto driven by a LaGrange man, Leonard Harnack, 51, of 217 S. Seventh Ave.

Police said Harnack was driving southbound on Harlem. The impact of the collision caused Miss Vasilinda's auto to flip over and land on its roof on the southeast corner of Harlem.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at Oak Park Hospital about 15 minutes after the accident at 11:53 p.m.

Harnack was treated and released at the hospital. Sgt. Charles Kline of Forest Park police said no charges had been made against Harnack yesterday afternoon.

Miss Vasilinda's body was later removed to Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets in Des Plaines. Funeral arrangements and a coroner's inquest were pending.

Community Thanksgiving set Thursday at Christ United

A community Thanksgiving service will be held Thursday evening at Christ United Church of Christ, Cora and Henry streets. The Des Plaines Ministerial Association, which represents a cross-section of the religious community, is sponsoring the 8 p.m. service.

The Rev. Carl G. Mettling, senior minister of the First United Methodist Church of Des Plaines will give the sermon. Assisting Rev. Mettling will be the Rev. Bernhard M. Johanson, minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Des Plaines; the Rev. Gerry Dodge of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, and the Rev. R. K. Wobbe, senior minister of the host church.

"The Heavens are Telling the Glory of God," "Sing Ye Lord Ye Voices of All" and "From the Creation" will be the musical selections for the service. James Thunder, organist and director of Christ Church will direct.

Participating in the musical portion of the service will be the adult choir of Christ Church augmented by members of the Northwest Choral Society, the bell choir and the brass choir.

The offering will be used for some of the benevolent work of the ministerial association.

The public is invited to attend.

Woman arrested in bogus-checks case

Police have charged a Des Plaines woman with theft by deception for her alleged involvement in three bad-check incidents at a local store dating back to last May.

The woman, Carmen Diaz, 23, of 1764 Oakton, was arrested Saturday at the K-Mart store, 1155 Oakton, after store security officials noticed she fit the photo description of a woman who cashed $66.18 worth of bogus checks at the store.

Police said the woman cashed a check for $20.27 May 23, another for $26.31 June 6 and a third on Sept. 18 in the amount of $19.60.

All three checks were returned for insufficient funds, according to reports.

Miss Diaz was later released on $1,000 bond and has been scheduled to appear in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Jan. 10.

Superblock planner dies in Winnetka home

Robert W. Ganser, a vice president of the Des Plaines Mall Corp., died Sunday at his home in Winnetka.

The 52-year-old Ganser was also project director for the city's Superblock commercial and retail complex.

In addition to his role in the downtown redevelopment plans, Ganser was also a partner in the Ganser Oguss Parking Co., which manages several parking garages in the city.

Funeral services for Ganser will be held at 10 a.m. today at the Weinstein Brothers, North Shore Chapel, 111 Skokie Blvd., Wilmette.

Big three—Walker, Daley, Blair—meet in RTA summit

by BOB LAHEY After nearly a year of political infighting over competing plans for a Regional Transit Authority, the state decision-makers scrapped all plans and have returned to Square One. Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker, Republican House Speaker W. Robert Blair and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, the three who must ultimately agree for any RTA plan to be adopted, yesterday began a series of meetings to iron out their differences on mass transit. The summit talks were agreed to only after the Democratic leadership finally became resigned — after holding state legislators in session until the early hours Saturday morning — to the fact that they could not beg or borrow the three or four more votes they needed to pass Gov. Walker's RTA plan. SO CLOSE WERE the Democrats to getting the 107 needed votes, they thought, that Victor DeGrazia, Walker's chief lieutenant, cranked up the state transportation apparatus to provide Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, a flying trip to her home district and back to the capital for the anticipated vote. While the House leadership held reluctant legislators in session Friday afternoon, DeGrazia was informed that Mrs. Chapman planned to leave Springfield for a fund-raising testimonial dinner in her honor. Alarmed that her absence might mean the difference in the 107 votes needed to put the governor's RTA plan over, DeGrazia ordered a state police car to chauffeur Mrs. Chapman to the Springfield airport. She was then flown in a state plane to O'Hare Airport where another state trooper waited to take her to the Arlington Heights Elks Club. After an abbreviated visit to the dinner, Mrs. Chapman returned to the waiting patrol car. Rushed back to O'Hare, she was flown back to the Capital, arriving at the House about 10:45 p.m. The vote never came, however. BY THE TIME Mrs. Chapman arrived, the Democrats had abandoned hope of passing the Walker plan and were maneuvering to adjourn the House with the measure still technically alive. Over the protests of weary and impatient legislators, House Democratic Leader Clyde Choate, with the assent of Blair, won approval of a motion to adjourn until Sunday afternoon, still nursing the hope of a weekend compromise. By mid-afternoon Saturday, according to a spokesman for Blair, it became finally apparent the Walker plan was dead and Blair contacted Daley with a summit-meeting proposal. Blair and the mayor agreed, the spokesman said, that the time had come for "everyone to back off and take a new look at the whole thing." The intent of the negotiations, he said, is that none of the principals (Blair, Daley and Walker) enter into them "anything that is not negotiable." Sen. John A. Teledyne leads way with $1,000

Industrial, school donations push Fund total to $8,400

Four large donations from industrial firms and a donation from High School Dist. 214 have raised the Elk Grove United Fund to about 70 per cent of its goal. Michael Leyden, president of the fund drive, said about $8,400 has been collected. This year's goal is $12,000. In past years, Teledyne Continental Motors, 930 Arthur Ave., has been a leading donor to the fund. This year the company again gave the largest donation of any industrial firm, $1,000. Other large industrial donations were: Hobart-McIntosh Paper Co., 1825 Greenleaf Ave., $500; PPG Industries Inc., 440 Lively Blvd., $300; and Raco Industrial Corp., 2325 Touhy Ave., $300. Dist. 214 collects donations from its employees and then divides the money among the communities served by the district. This year, Elk Grove United Fund received $1,222 from the school, an increase of 40 per cent of last year according to Leyden. A DOOR-TO-DOOR solicitation last month collected about $3,000 from village residents. Anyone who was not contacted and would like to make a donation may send their money to: Elk Grove United Fund; P. O. Box 131; Elk Grove Village, Ill. 60007. Leyden said the fund has not yet contacted Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 and the Elk Grove Village municipal office. The fund has been assisted by the Bank of Elk Grove in making personal calls on the larger firms in the industrial park. All workers on the village fund are unpaid volunteers and administrative expenses are less than 3 per cent of the budget. Although Elk Grove United Fund is a member of the Suburban Community Chest, all funds raised by the fund remain in the community. The Suburban Community Chest, with the Community Chest of Chicago and the Red Cross, form the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy. Among the local agencies receiving Elk Grove United Fund assistance are: Clearbrook Center for the mentally and physically handicapped; local Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls; the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center; Northwest Suburban Homemaker Service; and the U.S.O.

GOV. DANIEL WALKER is expected to walk through the mud of Busse Woods today to help with formal dedication to the mammoth flood control program now underway in the local forest preserve. The water basins will help contain the waters of Salt Creek.

Beverly Lake School to present program

A staff member and student from Beverly Lake School for the Retarded will present a program on the care of retarded children at tonight's meeting of the Elk Grove Village Nurses Club. The program will include a music-and-slide presentation on the school and its work. The meeting will be held in Stritch Hall at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, 800 W. Blesterfield Rd., at 8 p.m. Parents of retarded children, registered nurses in the area and other interested persons are invited to attend. Beverly Lake School, located in Elgin, teaches children who often have been termed "not educable." There is no charge for the meeting. A short business session will follow the presentation.

Governor to be at Ned Brown Forest Preserve

Reservoir ground to be broken today

Gov. Daniel Walker will be in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve today to dig out the first earth for the main pool of the flood-control reservoir in the preserve. The reservoir is one of a series of flood control structures to be built under the $26.5 million Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control program. When completed, the projects expected to reduce flooding on the Salt Creek by up to 90 per cent. Clearing and excavating work began last month. The project is expected to take up to nine years to be finished. As part of the project, a multi-million dollar recreation area will be constructed in the Busse Woods section of the forest preserve. ABOUT HALF OF the funds for the project are coming from local, regional and state government agencies. The excavating work now being done is being paid for with state money. The balance of the funds is now to be requested from the federal government. The House Public Works Committee must pass a resolution authorizing the money. House action is the only remaining step before the federal funds are approved. The Senate and other federal agencies have already reviewed and approved the plan. A spokesman for U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th said House action was expected in the first part of December. JOINING WALKER in today's ceremony will be George Dunne, Cook County board president, Arthur Janura, Cook County Forest Preserve District general superintendent, Rep. William Redmond, D-Bensenville and Nancy Philippi, director of the governor's task force on flood control. The governor's action today follows years of delay in attempting to get a flood control project for the Salt Creek. A final plan for the flood controls was developed in early 1972. The workplan then circulated amongst various local, regional, state and federal agencies before being approved.

Preserve sports area access 'iffy'

Village, county and state officials met yesterday to discuss relocating access roads to the winter sports area of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve without reaching any conclusive results. Village Mgr. Charles Willis said, "The meeting was successful in that we talked about the problem and left the doors open to further conversation." "Neither agency (the Cook County Forest Preserve District and the State Department of Transportation) was in a position, nor did we want them, to take a firm stand," said Willis. He said no commitment was made to either relocate the access roads or stop discussion on possible relocation. The officials were willing to meet again, but no date has been set. AS PART OF the Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control program, a multi-million dollar recreational area will be built in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve. The winter sports complex, including the largest ski hill in the state, will be located near Bisner and Cosman roads. Access to the complex and the parking lots is planned off of the two roads. Residents in the area have complained to the forest preserve district and the village, contending the expected traffic along Bisner and Cosman roads would present a safety hazard and would disrupt their community. The village board of trustees promised the residents an effort would be made to change the location of the access roads.

Warning lights stolen from parked truck

Warning lights were stolen from a wrecker truck parked at Karzen GMC Truck Co., 700 Busse Rd., during the weekend. According to Elk Grove Village police, the lights and mounting equipment were valued at $302.

POET LAUREATE OF Illinois Gwendolyn Brooks her poetry and meet with students interested in writing, Miss Brooks, who succeeded Carl Sandburg as state poet laureate in 1968, received a Pulitzer Prize in 1950 for her work "Annie Allen."

Wonderwords

Lady poet laureate of Illinois has a few for hopeful writers

by BOB GALLAS "Don't ever throw a scrap of anything you write away. The time may come when you'll decide to use it." That was just some of the advice given to the prospective poets and writers at Elk Grove High School yesterday by noted poet Gwendolyn Brooks. The poet laureate of Illinois and first black woman to receive a Pulitzer Prize in poetry visited the school yesterday to read some of her work to a school assembly and later meet informally with poetry-minded students and teachers. Miss Brooks, who's been heralded as the "true voice of the black slums," quickly established a rapport with her young audience by reading the short, humorous works of her favorite authors, that dealt with subjects such as school and young love. She also read some of her own works, covering everything from abortion to religion to the Chicago Picasso. MISS BROOKS, who has lived in Chicago virtually all of her life, met with students after the assembly to answer questions and give advice to those interested in writing. She referred to poetry as a "process of distilling." "For example, if you were writing about a love in your life, you wouldn't put down every little detail. Rather, you pick out the choicest elements and put them down on paper," said Miss Brooks. Chosen to succeed Carl Sandburg as poet laureate in 1968, Miss Brooks has since organized an annual contest for student poets throughout the state. She had awarded two prizes of $250 each to the best entries but now chooses the 20 top entries which she has published. Some of her works that Miss Brooks read included: —"The Mother" Abortions will not let you forget. You remember the children you got that you did not get. The damp small pulps with a little or no hair. The singers and workers that never handled the air... (Continued on page 5)

The Dugo family does more than its share for village

by FRED GACA

At 433 Maple Ln., a white frame house sits on a tree-lined street. It is similar to many houses in the area, except for one thing — it is the home of the greatest blood donating family in Elk Grove Village.

Three members of the Joseph Dugo family have donated a total of 1 1/4 gallons of blood in the past year to the village's Community Blood Program. Their family donation is more than 1 per cent of the 900 units (pints) of blood the village needs for its annual goal.

Mrs. Violet Dugo and her daughter Sheryl, 22, were recently named "Honored Citizens" of the village for donating a half-gallon of blood each. Son Joey, 18, has donated two pints.

The mother-daughter-son team all go at the same time on the days the village has its community blood drives. "As soon as we give, we sign up for the next time," said Mrs. Dugo.

SHE SAID THE family had gotten some return for their donations. Her husband, Joseph, a television repairman, required six pints of blood this summer when he was hospitalized.

A person who has had surgery cannot donate blood for several months, but Mrs. Dugo expects her husband will be able to give blood soon, perhaps for the village drive in April.

"It's really no big deal," she said. "I feel it's everyone's duty. I think everyone should give."

In addition to Sheryl and Joey, the Dugos also have three other boys living at home, Dennis, 10, and twins Mike and Mark, 8. An older, married daughter now lives in Utah. "And she gives blood there too," said Mrs. Dugo.

Occasionally, some people have problems giving blood, but the three Dugos have never been troubled. "I always feel great after giving blood," said Mrs. Dugo.

ON DAYS THEY give blood, the family follows the rules on what to eat and what not to eat. They avoid all dairy products and sweets. Breakfast is black coffee, unbuttered toast and fruit juices.

After giving blood, they have the sweets, juices and coffee that are available at the blood donating center in the headquarters fire station on Blesterfield Road.

With the village's blood replacement program, if 4 per cent of the residents give blood, all residents are guaranteed a free supply of whatever blood they need for medical reasons.

"It's a great program. There were no questions asked when my husband needed blood. And we weren't charged one penny," said Mrs. Dugo.

"I don't know why more people don't donate. Maybe they just don't want to take the time. Some people always wait for the other person to do something. I hope I am able to give blood as long as I can," she said. "We all will donate as long as we're able to."

Two degrees received

Two Elk Grove Village residents completed degree requirements during the recent summer quarter at Western Illinois University.

Terry Macshane, 980 Hartford Lane, received a bachelor of science degree and a master of science education was received by Terry McCombs, 1271 Aspen Lane.

Jaycees seeking bids for 'Citizen of Year'

Nominations are still being accepted by the Elk Grove Village Jaycees for "Citizen of the Year."

"Any resident of the village who has made an outstanding contribution to the community during the past year is eligible to be nominated," said Randal Melind, who is in charge of the event.

Four or five of the nominees will be chosen by a panel of Jaycee judges to receive the Jaycee Distinguished Service Award and will be honored at a special banquet on Jan. 26 at the Arlington Park Towers.

The "Citizen of the Year" will be chosen from the Distinguished Service Award winners by a panel of judges from outside the Jaycees, according to Melind.

Nominations should include the nominee's name, and why that person should be named "Citizen of the Year." Nominations should be mailed in care of Randal Melind, 109 Parkchester, Elk Grove Village, 60007.

Deadline for nominations is Dec. 15.

Band concert tonight

The Conant High School Band's first concert this year will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Hoffman Estates High School auditorium, 1100 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

Music from various areas has been selected by the band. The concert band ensemble will open the program with "Chorale and Shaker Dance," a work that is well liked by band members because its melody is from an old Shaker hymn. They will also play a standard English march, "L'Inglishna."

The performance of the symphonic band ensemble will include "Barnum and Bailey's Favorite," "West Side Story," and "Finlandia."

Tickets are $1 for adults, 50 cents for students, and are available from band members.

Big three—Walker, Daley, Blair—meet in RTA summit

by BOB LAHEY
After nearly a year of political infighting over competing plans for a Regional Transit Authority, the state decision-makers scrapped all plans and have returned to Square One.

Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker, Republican House Speaker W. Robert Blair and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, the three who must ultimately agree for any RTA plan to be adopted, yesterday began a series of meetings to iron out their differences on mass transit.

Resolve to probe scavenger contract legality

Village to hike homeowner rates for garbage service

Garbage pickup rates in Palatine are expected to increase by 50 cents for curb pickup and $1 for back door pickup. The rate increase proposal, to cover increase rates being charged to the village by Browning Ferris Industries of Illinois, Inc., was presented to the village board last night.

The board decided to investigate the legality of Browning Ferris raising the pickup of its drivers by 15.13 per cent under a recently-negotiated contract prior to acting on their proposed rate increases.

"I think we should contact Browning Ferris to find out what exempts them from the federal wage and price guidelines," said Village President Wendell E. Jones.

"It doesn't seem fair people who have to pay get 5 per cent increases and the people who send the bills get 15 per cent," Jones added.

THE PROPOSED monthly rates to homeowners will be increased from $2.25 to $2.75 for curb pickup, and from $4.45 to $5.45 for back door pickup. These rates cover the cost to the village for garbage pickup and administrative handling.

The Browning Ferris rates to the village have been hiked from $2.15 a month for curb pickup to $2.39, and from $4.38 to $5.10 for back door pickup. The rate hikes are retroactive to Nov. 1.

The increases represent an additional cost to the village of $1,583 per month.

William Hibner, finance director, informed the board that were the board to assume the additional cost of garbage pickup and not pass it on to homeowners, the refuse budget would finish the 1973-74 fiscal year with a projected deficit of $18,242.

Hibner and Jones have both recommended that any rate increases be passed on to the homeowners prior to the new fiscal year.

Already a record

Crusade drive nears $15,000

Contributions to the 1973 Palatine Crusade of Mercy have already surpassed previous efforts and the drive is climbing closer toward its $15,000 goal.

A total of $13,573 in contributions and pledges have been made to this year's drive. Additional funds are expected from the High School Dist. 211 drive, which ends this week; a second residential mailing, and some businesses, said Charles H. Foss, president of the Palatine Crusade of Mercy.

"This is the largest amount ever raised in Palatine and I am optimistic we will reach our goal. It is comforting our community cares enough to do enough," said Foss.

Emphasis this year was placed on the business community. Last year the business community accounted for only $2,000 of the $11,000 total.

RESPONSE FROM the business community is way ahead of last year, according to Foss. A total of $5,116 has been raised from businesses and through employee campaigns and there are still more businesses to be heard from, said Foss.

The largest single contribution this year is from the H. B. Fuller Co., 315 S. Hicks Rd., Palatine. The employees have contributed or pledged $2,200 and the company made a $300 contribution.

Employee campaigns in general have raised more than $3,500 Foss said.

Residential contributions are running ahead of last year with nearly $7,500 already contributed, said Foss. This represents contributions from approximately 450 residents. Based on past years, Foss expects contributions to be coming in from an additional 100 residents.

"We are grateful for the generosity of our neighbors because their contributions go a long way toward helping others enjoy a more complete life with renewed hope..." Foss said.

THE CAMPAIGN, with the theme "People Helping People," will continue through December.

"Every dollar raised stays in Palatine," said Foss. The Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy contributes nearly $2 for every dollar raised locally to make up the difference between the $15,000 local goal and the $45,000 needs of the 13 local organizations which share the funds.

Organizations receiving funds from the Crusade of Mercy include Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Countryside Center, United Servicemen's Organization, Salvation Army welfare fund and community service, Homemakers, Santa Teresita Church day care center, Northwest Mental Health, Clearbrook Center and Camp Reinberg.

New officers of the Crusade of Mercy will be elected on Dec. 5 at 8 p.m. at Palatine Township Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd. All Palatine residents are invited to attend the meeting.

Park table donation

A $100 table has been donated to the Salt Creek Park District from the Illinois Park and Recreation Conference concluded last week at the Arlington Park Towers.

The table was given to the district in recognition of its help in coordinating and helping supervise the conference which delegates representing park districts throughout the state attended.

Public zoning hearing is set for Nov. 30

Zoning requests for a restaurant and cocktail lounge, real estate office and a contractor's shop and office in northern areas of Palatine Township will be the subjects of a public hearing at the Palatine Village Hall, Nov. 30 at 3 p.m.

The largest property proposed for rezoning is five acres at the southwest corner of the Dundee Road-Greenview Avenue intersection, just south of the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

George J. Anos has asked Cook County Zoning officials to approve rezoning to allow a restaurant and cocktail lounge at that location. The land is currently zoned for single-family homes.

A contractor's office, shop and yard would be built on 4½ acres at the northwest corner of Quentin Road and Wood Street if the zoning is changed from single-family to a general commercial district. Applicant for the change is David J. Griffin.

ROBERT J. DILEONARDI is petitioning for rezoning of a half-acre of land on the north side of Dundee Road, 240 feet east of Hicks Road, for a real estate office. The property, currently zoned for single-family residences, would become a general business district zone if the officials approve the change.

The Zoning Board of Appeals will conduct the public hearing, then board members will review the application and make a recommendation to the Cook County Board of Commissioners. The county board makes the final decision on the rezoning requests.

Palatine Village Hall, where the hearings are scheduled, is at 54 S. Brockway St., Palatine.

Committee's recommendation to be made Nov. 26

Darien, Ill., police chief candidate here

Darien, Ill., Police Chief Roger C. Clark is one of several candidates in the running for the Palatine Police Chief post, The Herald has learned.

Clark and Rochelle Police Chief Jerry Bratcher are among the candidates being considered by the Palatine Police Chief search committee in preparation for the committee's Nov. 26 recommendation to the village board.

Clark, who has been Darien police chief for three years, confirmed that he is interested in the Palatine post, although he said it was "premature to talk about it at this time." Darien is a community of 7,800 people, located just south of Downers Grove in DuPage County.

A special committee was appointed by the village board in July to head an independent search for a replacement for ousted Police Chief Robert R. Centner.

CENTNER RESIGNED under pressure from Republican majority trustees on June 25, after a two-week campaign to force him to step down. The board charged it was dissatisfied with Centner's handling of the village's drug control program, overweight truck arrests, tavern surveillance and police morale.

Public sympathy for Centner mounted during the summer after his resignation. More than 3,000 petitioners asked village trustees to allow a public hearing investigating their reasons for wanting Centner out. Village trustees agreed to the hearing in early August, but the hearing, after a series of postponements, is not scheduled to begin until Dec. 1.

Centner's temporary successor, Lt. Frank Ortiz, also has been considered for the permanent post, although he has apparently been excluded from the final step toward selection. Ortiz and Palatine Lt. Harold Nehmizow have not yet been requested to take the battery of psychological and lie detector tests which both Bratcher and Clark reportedly have taken.

MEMBERS OF THE search committee have had a round of personal interviews with the candidates after an initial weeding-out of applicants. Following another elimination process of candidates, the committee ordered their top choices to take psychological and lie-detector tests. The committee is currently reviewing those test results, with a final recommendation to the village board scheduled for Nov. 26.

Committee members include Joseph M. Kiszka, deputy superintendent of Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15; Herman Hertog, executive director of the Buehler YMCA; L. W. Calderwood, Arlington Heights police chief; John D. Madl, director of the Police Services Bureau of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police; and James Bennett, acting Palatine village manager.

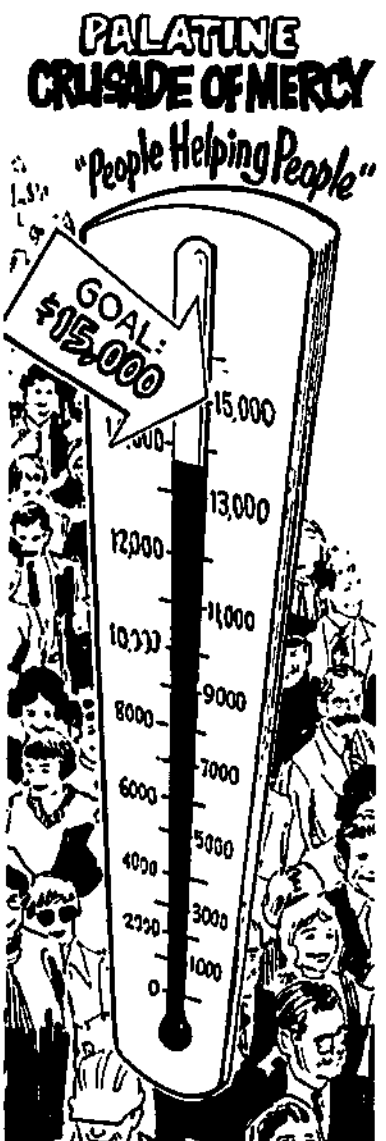

Santa Claus visits Friday

Santa Claus has a hectic schedule in Palatine Friday. He's scheduled for three appearances at village shopping areas.

Santa will arrive at all three locations via a Palatine fire truck. His landings for Friday are: Palatine Mall, on Hicks Road north of Northwest Highway, 10 a.m.; Palatine Plaza, Northwest Highway west of Hicks Road, 1:30 p.m.; and downtown Palatine, Palatine Road and Brockway Street, 2 p.m.

First-graders make their own Thanksgiving

It wasn't quite like the first Thanksgiving. There were only 40 people at the feast and most of those were the first graders who cooked the meal.

But there was pumpkin pie and turkey and stuffing and corn. The boys wore their construction-paper Indian headaddresses and the girls peeked out from under paper bonnets.

Some of the paper vests were a little large and perhaps the fringes were a little uneven, but the 26 miniature chefs from Hunting Ridge School, Palatine, ignored the minor problems and enjoyed the fruits of their labors.

The students, members of Barbara Tsutsumi's first grade class, had spent the morning cooking, making decorations and working on costumes. The feast was prepared and held in the home of Mrs. Diane Pel-letiere, Hunting Ridge PTA publicity chairman.

Actual work on the feast began last week, when the 6-and 7-year-olds bought the food for the meal. Cooking began Monday.

The turkey was put into the oven early in the morning and the children took turns making pumpkin pies. One youngster would kneel on a chair, bend over the table and roll out the dough. Others stirred the filling.

The children were cheerful and enthusiastic; tears appeared only while they were cutting up onions for the stuffing.

When Mrs. Tsutsumi poured the celery and onions that had been simmering in butter into the rest of the stuffing mix, one boy held his eyes tightly closed.

He explained why a little later. "I'm afraid the bread might jump out (of the stuffing mix) because it's too hot," he said with a grin.

Track, hotel owner may purchase park tax warrants

The Madison Square Garden Corp., which owns both the Arlington Park Race Track and the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, is expected to soon purchase $20,000 in tax anticipation warrants from the Salt Creek Park District.

The purchase, expected later this week or next week after publication of bidding for the warrants, will provide an additional $20,000 to be used in the district's building and park improvement plans, according to James DeVos, director of parks and recreation.

DeVos said yesterday the district requested that the corporation make the purchase to help fund park improvements which are scheduled to be made over the next two years. "We approached them (the corporation) to buy the warrants because we need the money for development," he said.

HE SAID ABOUT $21,000 in revenue from the district's programming fund would be needed to supplement funds for park improvements which over the next two years will cost a total of $90,000. The tax warrants will be used to compensate for the $21,000 which would otherwise come from the district's non-building funds, he said.

Park districts and other taxing bodies regularly use tax anticipation warrants to borrow needed funds when tax revenues are depleted or when tax money is distributed late. The districts in effect borrow on their anticipated tax revenue through the warrants.

DeVos said the warrants will carry a 4 per cent yearly interest rate.

The money will be considered a donation to the district, since any money received by the district over its regular tax revenue is considered a donation, he added.

THE CORPORATION will be entitled to write off the warrants similar to a tax deduction, he added.

The district currently operates on an $81,000 budget. Total assessed valuation of the district increased this year to $39 million, an increase of $14 million in property value from last year's $25 million assessment.

Because the race track and hotel are located within the district's boundaries, they pay a park district tax rate of only 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation, which is the lowest assessed by any local park district.

LAST YEAR TAXES from the $12,658,611-assessed track complex accounted for nearly one-third of the district's total revenue. A number of park programs, including swimming and golf, also utilize facilities at the hotel.

DeVos said the money from the tax warrants will be used to help fund a longrange improvement program for the district's three parks. A master plan approved recently by the Salt Creek board of commissioners calls for a $200,000 renovation program in the next four to five years which will include new landscaping

Walker to break ground for flood-control pool

Gov. Daniel Walker will be in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve today to dig out the first earth for the main pool of the flood-control reservoir in the preserve.

The reservoir is one of a series of flood control structures to be built under the $28.5 million Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control program. When completed, the projects expected to reduce flooding on the Salt Creek by up to 90 per cent.

Clearing and excavating work began last month. The project is expected to take up to nine years to be finished.

As part of the project, a multi-million dollar recreation area will be constructed in the Busse Woods section of the forest preserve.

ABOUT HALF OF the funds for the project are coming from local, regional and state government agencies. The excavating work now being done is being paid for with state money.

The balance of the funds is now to be requested from the federal government.

The House Public Works Committee must pass a resolution authorizing the money. House action is the only remaining step before the federal funds are approved.

The Senate and other federal agencies have already reviewed and approved the plan.

JOINING WALKER in today's ceremony will be George Dunne, Cook County board president, Arthur Janura, Cook County Forest Preserve District general superintendent, Rep. William Redmond, D-Bensenville and Nancy Philippi, director of the governor's task force on flood control.

The governor's action today follows years of delay in attempting to get a flood control project for the Salt Creek. A final plan for the flood controls was developed in early 1972. The workplan then circulated amongst various local, regional, state and federal agencies before being approved.

Big three—Walker, Daley, Blair—meet in RTA summit

by BOB LAHEY
After nearly a year of political infighting over competing plans for a Regional Transit Authority, the state decision-makers scrapped all plans and have returned to Square One.

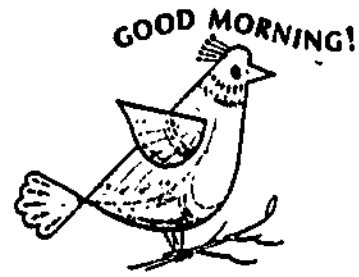

Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker, Republican House Speaker W. Robert Blair and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, the three who must ultimately agree for any RTA plan to be adopted, yesterday began a series of meetings to iron out their differences on mass transit.

The summit talks were agreed to only after the Democratic leadership finally became resigned — after holding state legislators in session until the early hours Saturday morning — to the fact that they could not beg or borrow the three or four more votes they needed to pass Gov. Walker's RTA plan.

SO CLOSE WERE the Democrats to getting the 107 needed votes, they thought, that Victor DeGrazia, Walker's chief lieutenant, cranked up the state transportation apparatus to provide Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, a flying trip to her home district and back to the capital for the anticipated vote.

While the House leadership held reluctant legislators in session Friday afternoon, DeGrazia was informed that Mrs. Chapman planned to leave Springfield for a fund-raising testimonial dinner in her honor.

Alarmed that her absence might mean the difference in the 107 votes needed to put the governor's RTA plan over, DeGrazia ordered a state police car to chauffeur Mrs. Chapman to the Springfield airport. She was then flown in a state plane to O'Hare Airport where another state trooper waited to take her to the Arlington Heights Elks Club.

A 55-year-old former building and zoning officer from the Chicago suburban area is expected to be Rolling Meadows' next building and zoning chief.

Groundbreaking has begun on a new $500,000 expansion and remodeling program for Amling's Flowerland on Algonquin and Wilke roads in Rolling Meadows.

Amling's has been in operation at the Rolling Meadows location for seven years and is one of nine Amling's Flower and Garden Centers in the Chicago area.

Green Bay man arrested, to face rape charges

Police arrested a Green Bay, Wis. man yesterday and charged him with raping a Des Plaines woman last week.

Sven Ebsen, 35, was captured by Des Plaines police near Lee Street and the Soo Line R.R. tracks after police spotted his auto which matched the description of a car given out over Illinois State Emergency Police Radio Network (IS-PERN).

According to reports, Ebsen assaulted the woman twice over a period of several hours while visiting her in her apartment.

POLICE SAID the two had met each other through a business contact.

Ebsen was reportedly staying at the Des Plaines Holiday Inn, Mannheim Road and Touhy Avenue near where he was spotted by police yesterday.

Ebsen was being held on $10,000 bond yesterday and has been scheduled to appear in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Dec. 6.

Lumberyard workers return with new pact

Lumberyard workers who walked off their jobs last week have returned to work in the wake of a new three-year contract that will boost their wages to $7 an hour by 1976.

Nearly 800 laborers had struck at major lumber yards throughout the metropolitan area, including the Hill-Behan Lumber Co. in Arlington Heights and Edward Hines Lumber in Wheeling and Mount Prospect.

The strike, which for most men took effect last Monday, was settled late Friday afternoon, a spokesman for International Labor Union 260 said yesterday.

Tallymen, who count and load lumber orders, were working at a basic salary of $5.30. The union and the Lumber Trade Association agreed on a $1.70-an-hour increase over the three-year life of the contract.

The strike had a limited impact on branch lumber yards in the Northwest suburbs. Most workers were idled at the companies' main yards.

A Rolling Meadows man was charged with driving too fast for conditions after he rolled his car over on Palatine frontage road Monday morning.

Arlington Heights police said Daniel C. Davidson, 41, of 3004 Martin Ln., Rolling Meadows, was northbound on the road, west of Yale, when he lost control of his car. The car rolled onto its roof as it skidded into the ditch, police said.

Davidson was treated for head and facial injuries at Northwest Community Hospital and released.

Part of the money may also go toward the purchase of a vacuum used to clean swimming pools, DeVos said. He said district employees now clean the Arlington Park Towers swimming pool on weekends after district swimming programs are held. The automatic vacuum, which costs about $600, could be used for the cleaning job and free park employees for other duties, DeVos said.

Big three—Walker, Daley, Blair—meet in RTA summit

by BOB LAHEY
After nearly a year of political infighting over competing plans for a Regional Transit Authority, the state decision-makers scrapped all plans and have returned to Square One.

Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker, Republican House Speaker W. Robert Blair and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, the three who must ultimately agree for any RTA plan to be adopted, yesterday began a series of meetings to iron out their differences on mass transit.

The summit talks were agreed to only after the Democratic leadership finally became resigned — after holding state legislators in session until the early hours Saturday morning — to the fact that they could not beg or borrow the three or four more votes they needed to pass Gov. Walker's RTA plan.

SO CLOSE WERE the Democrats to getting the 107 needed votes, they thought, that Victor DeGrazia, Walker's chief lieutenant, cranked up the state transportation apparatus to provide Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, a flying trip to her home district and back to the capital for the anticipated vote.

While the House leadership held reluctant legislators in session Friday afternoon, DeGrazia was informed that Mrs. Chapman planned to leave Springfield for a fund-raising testimonial dinner in her honor.

Alarmed that her absence might mean the difference in the 107 votes needed to put the governor's RTA plan over, DeGrazia ordered a state police car to chauffeur Mrs. Chapman to the Springfield airport. She was then flown in a state plane to O'Hare Airport where another state trooper waited to take her to the Arlington Heights Elks Club.

After an abbreviated visit to the dinner, Mrs. Chapman returned to the waiting patrol car. Rushed back to O'Hare, she was flown back to the Capital, arriving at the House about 10:45 p.m.

The vote never came, however.

BY THE TIME Mrs. Chapman arrived, the Democrats had abandoned hope of passing the Walker plan and were maneuvering to adjourn the House with the measure still technically alive.

Over the protests of weary and impatient legislators, House Democratic Leader Clyde Choate, with the assent of Blair, won approval of a motion to adjourn until Sunday afternoon, still nursing the hope of a weekend compromise.

By mid-afternoon Saturday, according to a spokesman for Blair, it became finally apparent the Walker plan was dead and Blair contacted Daley with a summit-meeting proposal.

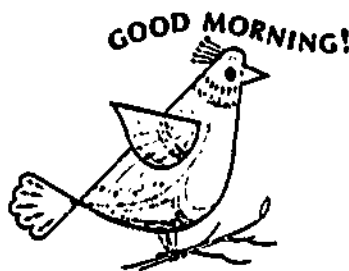

Blair and the mayor agreed, the spokesman said, that the time had come for "everyone to back off and take a new look at the whole thing."

The intent of the negotiations, he said, is that none of the principals (Blair, Daley and Walker) enter into them "anything that is not negotiable."

Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, assistant minority leader in the Senate, said yesterday that Senate Republicans, however, would insist on two provisions in any RTA bill — that two-thirds of the money raised for it be spent in the county where it is collected; and that the bill

Hoffman board to act on fire sprinkler law

In a few weeks, the Hoffman Estates Village Board will act on a proposed fire-sprinkler system ordinance.

The authors of the ordinance said it would prevent serious property losses similar to those sustained in a recent fire in the former W. T. Grant building in Golf-Rose Plaza.

The board last night directed its attorney to prepare an ordinance that would require sprinkler systems, heat and smoke detectors in "all buildings larger than 5,000 square feet."

The ordinance was proposed by Melvin E. Timmons, chairman of the judiciary committee, which wrote the ordinance, and won support from all trustees present at the village board meeting. Mayor Virginia Hayter was absent.

William Cowin, president pro tem, termed it an "extremely important piece of legislation" and added, "Some people may scream about it." Cowin advised his fellow trustees to read the ordinance carefully, noting it would affect design and cost in future developments.

Trustee Dyrle Rathman said the ordinance would "put detectors in apartments, not just in hallways." He said, "People don't die in hallways, they die in apartments where the fire is."

COWIN DIRECTED Village Manager George Longmeyer to send copies of the proposed ordinance to builders currently constructing in the village for their opinions. Final action is not expected for at least two weeks.

COORDINATION AND CONCENTRATION are important elements in mastering a six-inch balance beam. Here Mary Tompkins, a gymnastics instructor, works with one of her class to perfect techniques. Gymnastics, offered by Hoffman Estates Park District, is held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. each Saturday at Dwight D. Eisenhower Junior High School, Hassell and Jones roads.

800-unit Treehouse set for test

Preliminary plans for an 800-unit rental complex at Algonquin and Plum Grove roads are being readied for examination by Schaumburg's Zoning Board of Appeals Nov. 28.

Known as The Treehouse, the project is being developed by Finger Enterprises, Houston. The firm has completed similar complexes in Lisle and Willowbrook.

Annexation of a 40-acre site, just west of International Village, is being requested along with planned unit development zoning for the property. The land is in Palatine Township Elementary School Dist. 15.

The complex would consist chiefly of one and two bedroom apartments with a few three bedroom units also included, according to Barry Nikritz, of Aaron, Aaron, Shineberg and Hess, attorney for the petitioner.

Full self-contained recreational facilities also are planned for the complex. A public hearing is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr.

Harmony in home Hillcrest PTA topic

What parents can do to achieve better harmony in the home will be discussed by Hillcrest PTA members at tonight's 8 p.m. meeting.

A speaker from the Family Education Association, which offers counseling service for parents and children, will exchange ideas with people.

Some of the things discussed will be: What makes parents feel disregarded, defeated and unable to cope with their children and how children be helped.

Mrs. Marlene Jones, PTA publicity chairman, said the Parent Education committee decided this type of PTA speaker could be their way of observing American Education Week.

The meeting is open to anyone and the session will be held in the school's all-purpose room, 201 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

Governor to be at Ned Brown Forest Preserve

Reservoir ground to be broken today

Gov. Daniel Walker will be in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve today to dig out the first earth for the main pool of the flood-control reservoir in the preserve.

The reservoir is one of a series of flood control structures to be built under the $28.5 million Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control program. When completed, the projects expected to reduce flooding on the Salt Creek by up to 90 per cent.

Clearing and excavating work began last month. The project is expected to take up to nine years to be finished.

As part of the project, a multi-million dollar recreation area will be constructed in the Busse Woods section of the forest preserve.

ABOUT HALF OF the funds for the project are coming from local, regional and state government agencies. The excavating work now being done is being paid for with state money.

The balance of the funds is now to be requested from the federal government. The House Public Works Committee must pass a resolution authorizing the money. House action is the only remaining step before the federal funds are approved.

The Senate and other federal agencies have already reviewed and approved the plan.

A spokesman for U.S. Rep. Philip

Crane, R-12th said House action was expected in the first part of December.

JOINING WALKER in today's ceremony will be George Dunne, Cook County board president, Arthur Janura, Cook County Forest Preserve District general superintendent, Rep. William Redmond, D-Bensenville and Nancy Philippi, director of the governor's task force on flood control.

The governor's action today follows years of delay in attempting to get a flood control project for the Salt Creek. A final plan for the flood controls was developed in early 1972. The workplan then circulated amongst various local, regional, state and federal agencies before being approved.

Preserve sports area access 'iffy'

Village, county and state officials met yesterday to discuss relocating access roads to the winter sports area of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve without reaching any conclusive results.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said, "The meeting was successful in that we talked about the problem and left the doors open to further conversation."

"Neither agency (the Cook County Forest Preserve District and the State Department of Transportation) was in a position, nor did we want them, to take a firm stand," said Willis.

He said no commitment was made to either relocate the access roads or stop discussion on possible relocation. The officials were willing to meet again, but no date has been set.

AS PART OF the Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control program, a multi-million dollar recreational area will be built in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve.

The winter sports complex, including the largest ski hill in the state, will be located near Bisner and Cosman roads. Access to the complex and the parking lots is planned off of the two roads.

Residents can share in making up survey

People in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 34 have an opportunity to share in composing a survey questionnaire that will come back to them, asking how they feel about the district.

The Community Relations Committee has compiled a rough draft of 58 questions they hope will tell the district how people feel about the schools, staff, programs and other issues.

Gordon Thoren, chairman of the committee said next Monday the committee will finalize the questionnaire and submit it to the board of education for its action.

HE ASKED ANY person interested in submitting a particular question to review and critique the questions proposed so far and help the group finalize the questionnaire or submit more questions.

The first part of the survey deals with how many children from a household are in school and in what grades. It also asks if people rent or own their own home, where they lived and for how long within the district.

If people resided in any other district they are asked to compare the education their children received in other districts to that received in Dist. 34.

The survey asks how adequate the building is where their child attends school and if parents think it is being utilized adequately for community and recreational activities.

People will be asked to state if they believe a cafeteria should be in their child's school and if all children should be able to eat at school, at the district's expense. Also asked is should the school provide hot lunches or should children come home for lunch? If a student comes home for lunch "How much time would he need?" is another question.

MANY QUESTIONS deal with the report card system, parent conferences and how parents regard discipline practices in their child's school.

Parents are asked to comment on the adequacy of special education, education for gifted students and vocational and career exploration programs.

Book fees, how people feel about bus-ing all students, regardless of how far away from school they live, the board of education, principals, teachers, teachers' salaries and the maintenance of schools also are included in the survey.

The questionnaire will ask people to tell the district how well their child likes school.

The questions were compiled by a group of about 20 persons in the district.

GOV. DANIEL WALKER is expected to walk through the mud of Busse Woods today to help with formal dedication to the mammoth flood control program now underway in the local forest preserves. The water basins will help contain the waters of Salt Creek.

The girls, daughters of Mayor and Mrs. Robert O. Atcher, provided a refreshing bit of country and western entertainment at last Friday's Third Annual Schaumburg United Party Presidential Ball. In fact, they even proved persuasive enough to get "Mom and Dad" to join them in the finale.

And, it was a very proud Bob Atcher who told the approving guests that both daughters plan careers as performers.

"They have always had the talent but not until very recently have they confirmed the inclination," he explained.

SCHAUMBURG'S new Civic Center will have a living Christmas tree thanks to the Jaycees.

The local chapter recently allocated nearly $300 to purchase a huge evergreen tree for planting at the Schaumburg Road site of the new administration complex.

With proper luck it may be in and ready for decorating this season.

The building is now nearing completion and village officials anticipate moving to the new location between Christmas and New Years. Village staffers may then be able to start out 1974 in their new home.

Interior colors are predominantly black and white because, it seems, those are favorites of architect Al Eichstadt. This is in sharp contrast to the earthy tones of exterior materials.

Schaumburg's cultural commission is expected to soon begin escalating plans for the eastern end of the property.

A December meeting of the commission, chaired by Chicago attorney and philanthropist Jack Pritzker, is being planned.

It is possible that the commission may soon be ready to announce ideas for additional cultural center fund-raising that may involve proposals for a piece of nearby property donated to the village by a developer last year.

Watch for news soon of the proposed extension of Plum Grove Road north over the Northwest Tollroad. Cooperation of Nardell & Co., developers of an industrial park on Algonquin Road, is expected in the project.

AT CENTEX-SCHAUMBURG Industrial Park, in the south end of the village, major development is also imminent. Three or possibly four large corporations have expressed more than casual interest in purchasing large sites there.

NEWS OF improvements in the condition of Trustee Jim Guthrie's mother, who was taken seriously ill last week, is heartwarming.

IT WAS REALLY his and hers birthday time last week for the Grobart family of Hoffman Estates. Al and his eldest daughter, Barbara, celebrated on the 10th. Another daughter, Nina, and the Grobart's youngest, David blew out their candles Saturday, leaving only Mama (Renee) out in the cold, birthday wise, until February.

Thanksgiving tips for motorists

Driving? Use caution, chief urges

Hoffman Estates Police Chief John O'Connell this week issued travel tips for persons leaving town for the holiday weekend.

"For Thanksgiving's sake, check weather and road reports before starting out. The weather bureau, state police or local motor club can usually give you this information," said O'Connell.

"Starting out in the face of severe storm conditions could invite an experience for which you might find it hard to be thankful," he added.

The chief noted weather conditions of the Midwest, saying "often the first winter storms of the season hit during Thanksgiving." He urged persons who will be traveling during the holiday to prepare their autos "for the worst winter may have to offer."

O'CONNELL ADVISED travelers to adjust their schedules to allow extra travel time for possible adverse traffic and weather conditions and to correct any vehicle defects before starting a trip. Also pay particular attention to lights, battery, heater, defroster, seat belts, windshield wipers, brakes, tires and tire chains. Drivers should use a brush or scraper to clear all auto windows as well as headlights, tail lights and directional signals. They also should remember to pump brakes as they slow down or stop, to prevent wheel locking and skidding. In any adverse driving conditions, said O'Connell, drivers should increase the distance between cars in traffic.

The chief also suggested a full scale auto tuneup this winter, as a fuel conservation measure as well as a winter readiness step.

"The best way to winterize your car is to take it to a reputable service station with instructions to take care of everything, no matter how insignificant it may seem, that has anything to do with keeping your car running and moving in cold weather," he said.

The chief urges village residents to have their autos inspected "from fan belt to tailpipe," and to install snow or studded tires now, in anticipation of snow. O'Connell also suggested drivers keep a set of tire chains in their auto trunks for use in especially severe snowstorms.

The local scene

Village hall landscaped

A site in front of the Hoffman Estates Village Hall has been landscaped by the community's Woman's Club.

Mrs. John Carroll, 403 Rosedale Ln., drew up a plan and landscaped the area with barberry bushes, hicks yews and burning bush.

Tulips and other spring flowers will bloom there next April or May, she added.

Big three—Walker, Daley, Blair—meet in RTA summit

by BOB LAHEY

After nearly a year of political infighting over competing plans for a Regional Transit Authority, the state decision-makers scrapped all plans and have returned to Square One.

Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker, Republican House Speaker W. Robert Blair and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, the three who must ultimately agree for any RTA plan to be adopted, yesterday began a series of meetings to iron out their differences on mass transit.

The summit talks were agreed to only after the Democratic leadership finally became resigned — after holding state legislators in session until the early hours Saturday morning — to the fact that they could not beg or borrow the three or four more votes they needed to pass Gov. Walker's RTA plan.

16 per cent hike in garbage service rates outlined

Garbage rates are expected to increase by 16 per cent in Mount Prospect, but residents won't feel the pinch for another 1½ years.

An increase had been anticipated because of the recently-settled contract giving higher wages to garbagemen, but the specific amount was not disclosed until last night.

David Paige, general manager of Browning-Ferris Industries of Illinois, Inc., Barrington, outlined the new rates at a meeting of the village board's finance committee. The committee is expected to report to the full board on Dec. 4, when the new rates will be adopted.

In effect, the rates will jump from $3 a month per household unit to $3.55, effective Dec. 1.

Because of the timing of the increase in relation to tax assessment and collection, however, taxpayers won't actually begin paying the higher rates directly until summer of 1975.

IN THE MEANTIME, the difference between the present rates and the new rates will be made up by the village through its general revenues.

Richard L. Jesse, village finance director, said after the meeting last night the boost in garbage fees, while sizable, "didn't surprise us too much."

Where the extra $113,400 the village will be paying over the next year and a half to cover the increase will come from "will have to be tackled when we develop our budget for next year," he said. Preliminary paperwork for the budget is under way now.

The increase in garbage fees actually takes into account two separate increases which happen to come at the same time.

In submitting the low bid for the village's scavenger contract last Aug. 1, Browning-Ferris quoted a figure of $3.07 a month per household. However, federal price controls had frozen the rates at $3.

The price controls on sanitary services was lifted Nov. 12, permitting the higher rate to automatically go into effect.

MEANWHILE, ON Oct. 31, garbagemen belonging to local 705 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, some of whom work for Browning-Ferris, ratified a new contract which will boost their wages by about 15 per cent.

Mount Prospect's contract with Browning-Ferris includes an escalator clause that permits garbage pickup costs to go up when garbagemen's salaries increase.

Together, the two increases will push the present $3 rates to $3.55. Paige agreed to hold off charging the extra fees until Dec. 1, at Jesse's request.

Mount Prospect residents are not charged directly for garbage service. Scavenger costs are paid from the village's general fund.

Any increase in taxes to cover the higher pickup costs could not be levied until next fall and collected until the following summer.

THE CAR leased to the village of Mount Prospect its place in Eppley's parking space outside village and four other vehicles are being leased for village for the use of Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley takes hall. The car, a 1974 Chevrolet Caprice Classic, use.

Eppley OKs $9,360 auto lease minus village board approval

That 1974 maroon Chevrolet Caprice Classic being driven around town by Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley may be the subject of a decision tonight by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

The board may be asked to give Eppley approval for leasing five cars for the village without going to competitive bids, even though Eppley has informally authorized the $9,360-a-year lease with Deeds Auto Leasing of Oak Park.

Board action on the matter is expected to come as a result of a Herald inquiry over the size, shape and cost of leased cars used by the village.

The five cars from Deeds include two luxury cars, one used by Eppley and the other by Police Chief Bert Giddens. The other three are intermediate models being used by police detectives, but specific descriptions of the vehicles are being withheld to prevent their identity in investigative matters.

Municipalities are required by Illinois state statutes to advertise for sealed bids on any contract over $1,500. The statutes, however, do not specifically deal with leasing arrangements, and it is uncertain whether bids are required.

Eppley said the village advertises for bids "as much as we can, but many times, it's a waste of time and money."

In making the decision to seek oral quotations from five selected car rental agencies rather than advertising for sealed bids, Eppley said: "I don't feel I am breaking any law. If you want to hang me with that, you may."

He added: "I think I saved the village some money."

Mayor Robert D. Telchert, who is a lawyer, said the question of whether bids are required in arranging leases is "much ado about nothing."

"I'm not concerned with legal gymnastics about dotting i's and crossing t's. I know we are operating in the spirit of the law by providing the best services at the least price."

Eppley indicated he may bring the leasing contract before the village board in its regular meeting tonight "to ratify my action in the waiving of bids."

The board can waive bids by a two-thirds vote.

Eppley said time was the main factor in his decision to seek quotations, rather than going through the sealed bid procedure, which takes longer.

He said that Lattof Car Rental, Inc., Arlington Heights, did not inform the village until recently that its lease for three 1973 cars would expire today, not leaving enough time to advertise for bids.

However, Robert Barnowski of Lattof said the village's contract with the agency, which was signed a year ago and renewed six months ago, "states in black and white when the termination is."

Barnowski also said, "We're flexible." If the village wanted the cars for extra time beyond the contract expiration date in order to arrange for new cars, "that could have been arranged. We do it all the time."

The village's recently expired lease with Lattof called for three cars, originally for $165 a month per car. After six months, the contract was renewed at a rate of $130 a month per car because of depreciation in the vehicles' value.

Eppley conceded the village could have renewed its contract with Lattof, but said "they wanted a price increase and we could get new cars for less."

Barnowski said, however, that the firm was not asked by the village to quote a price on keeping the 1973 models, only on 1974 cars.

If the village had wanted to keep its 1973 cars for another six months, it could have been arranged at a rate not exceeding $130 a month per car, because of depreciation, according to Barnowski.

The rates quoted by Deeds Auto Leasing, which submitted the low quote, are $165 a month for each of the two Caprice Classics, and $150 a month for each of the other three cars.

Through his contractual agreement with the village, Eppley is permitted use of a car for both village and personal needs, at village expense.

Eppley said in regard to trading in his 1973 model for a new car: "If someone thinks I shouldn't be driving a new car,

Revenue-sharing funds weighed for bike paths

Bicycle trails throughout Prospect Heights may be possible through use of Wheeling Township federal revenue-sharing funds.

The Prospect Heights Park District is readying an application with the township for a share of its federal funds. Park Comr. Patricia Kerwin said she feels there is a good chance bicycle trails would qualify under fund-use guidelines adopted by the township.

Wheeling Township so far has received $347,813 in federal revenue sharing monies. Forms from Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus have been received by the park district and will be filled out "as quickly as possible," Kerwin said.

Park Director Ronald Greenberg said the park board will have to decide where the bike trails should go and come up with some kind of cost factor for the application to the township.

A DECISION would have to be made whether the bike trails should parallel existing roads (requiring paving materials) or if they should be part of the existing roadways (requiring only signs and paint), Greenberg said.

So far, Greenberg said he has talked with Commonwealth Edison officials about the district's leasing land along the utility company's right-of-way for a bicycle trail. Greenberg said Commonwealth Edison said yes to the idea.

Kerwin suggested the bike trails follow the paths taken by students on their way to school. She said it would increase the children's safety too. Comr. Max Lyle said any Prospect Heights bike trails should be worked out so that they tie in with other communities' bike trails.

Court order bars Des Plaines annex

A Cook County Circuit Court Judge yesterday issued a temporary restraining order against Des Plaines, blocking action on annexation of a vacant piece of land south of Algonquin Road and west of Elmhurst Road.

The restraining order, issued by Judge Walter P. Dahl, does not affect annexation action on other properties being sought by Des Plaines. The order was issued after Mount Prospect Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann requested an emergency hearing to halt a move by Des Plaines to annex property at the intersection.

The two towns have been involved in legal battles regarding property along Elmhurst road for a number of years.

Des Plaines had sought, in August, to annex several parcels near the intersection, including the Waterfall Restaurant, Colony apartments, a gas station and a small commercial area. That move was stymied by legal action by Mount Prospect officials.

YESTERDAY'S COURT hearing was the latest in an ongoing battle between the two communities. Officials in both communities have been critical of each other over land planning and the development along Elmhurst Road.

While action on the annexation will not be taken, the city council is expected to order city corporation counsel Robert DiLeonardi to appeal another land annexation court decision.

The court ruled against Des Plaines and stated Mount Prospect could annex property known as the Dawn Fresh Mushroom Farm at Elmhurst Road and Thacker Road.

In that case, the judge decided that while Des Plaines had filed their annexation petitions first, the annexation petition was not correctly prepared.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said he would urge the city council to appeal the decision.

As Thanksgiving arrives, there are many things for which each of us is grateful. But let us not forget, as a community, to be thankful for the fine area in which we live. Without any intention of boasting, let's look at some of the advantages of living in Mount Prospect.

There is the Chicago and North Western Ry., which provides transportation for commuters (20 minutes to the Loop on express trains). And though we grow about fare increases, regular users know that the service is perhaps the finest in the country.

We have quick, easy access to an extensive expressway system. The Northwest Tollway leading to the Kennedy Expressway and Chicago has an entrance just south of town. An entrance to the Tri-State — thus Wisconsin or Indiana — is just east of Mount Prospect. And we are 15 minutes from O'Hare Airport, which links us to the world.

WE HAVE: A variety of faiths worshipped in 15 churches in town, all closely knit by an area Ministerial Association. There are four hospitals within easy reach — Northwest Community, Holy Family, Lutheran General and Alexian Brothers. There are 35 doctors and 30 dentists operating within the village.

Our elementary school youngsters are well above the national scholastic average. Seventy-four per cent of our High School Dist. 214 June '73 grads went on to higher levels of study.

The schools have a very favorable teacher-pupil ratio, have fine facilities. As residents of Mount Prospect, we are also part of the Harper College district.

The Mount Prospect Park District owns 272 acres of land, and leases 60 more for use by residents. It provides a complete program of activities for children and adults. Facilities include three swimming pools, a community center, playground equipment, tennis courts, a golf course. There are also four other golf courses in the immediate area — two public, two private.

ARLINGTON PARK Race Track is nearby. The Illinois inland lake chain and forest preserves are close, providing opportunity for boating, swimming, fishing, camping and hiking. We have a private indoor-outdoor tennis club, numerous movies and theatres, and a new ice skating rink. One of the nation's largest YMCA's is right down the highway.

Shopping is fantastic. We have Randhurst right in town and Woodfield just a holler away. Not to be overlooked is the central downtown district with a full variety of retail shops, plus several park-and-shop centers.

We have an abundance of youth groups with capable, dedicated leaders. There are Boy Scouts, Indian Guides and Princesses, Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts and E-Hart Girls. There is a Midget Football group, a Baseball for Boys program and a Mount Prospect Ice Skating Club. There are 34 civic and service clubs in town. There are many senior citizen groups sponsored by churches, clubs, organizations.

OUR POLICE department has 39 men. Our fire department has a 51 man force and is getting five more. There are 21 paramedics on the fire team.

Our library has 70,338 books, 33,603 card holders. There is a staff of 28. Our library is a member of the North Suburban Library System so it can provide books from the University of Illinois, the University of Chicago and from 35 other libraries in the system. There are books for the blind, books with large type for the partially sighted. Art prints and sculpture may also be taken from the library.

Mount Prospect streets are tree lined, homes are well maintained. The village has charm, beauty and convenience.

So while there is much to be done, let us take time to be thankful that we live in such a fine community.

$265 stolen

William Jackson, 19, of 1870 Palm Dr., reportedly had $265 cash stolen from his bed headboard. Mount Prospect police said the theft occurred between 6 p.m. Thursday and 2 p.m. Saturday.

Six teenagers caught 'smoking' at school

Six Prospect High School students were apprehended by Mount Prospect police Friday at an alleged pot party behind the high school maintenance building.

Police said the youths, aged 15 and 16, and all from the village, were processed through the juvenile department and handed over to their parents. The raid came at 11:15 a.m. Friday at the school, 801 W. Kensington Rd. A pipe with marijuana was confiscated, police said.

two local youths charged Band instruments found,

Two Mount Prospect youths, one a juvenile, have been arrested and charged with possession of stolen goods after police began recovering seven musical instruments stolen from the Prospect High School band room.

Most of the instruments were reported missing Thursday morning, although one was reported stolen Nov. 6. It was the latter instrument, a $250 flute, that police first recovered.

The flute turned up at Wilkins Music Center, 920 E. Northwest Hwy., at 4:45 p.m. Friday when the juvenile allegedly tried to sell it. He later reportedly told police he had bought the flute for $50 and denied stealing it. However, police said the youth told them where other missing instruments could be found.

TIAT INFORMATION led to the arrest of James F. Maniscalco, 18, of 910 S. Emerson St., who had a $650 saxophone in his bedroom, and the recovery later of a second flute and one of two stolen piccolos.

Maniscalco, who allegedly had only the saxophone, told police he saw a youth drop the instrument outside Prospect High School and then took it home himself, police said. They added that Maniscalco made no efforts to find the saxophone's owner. He will appear Dec. 7 in Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Still missing is a $64 pair of cymbals, a flute and a piccolo, police said.

Eppley said he had "no comment" on the gas mileage of the Caprice Classic, which is listed by the Environmental Protection Agency as 8.8 miles per gallon. Last week, Teichert and Eppley put out a memorandum calling for minimal use of village vehicles because of the gasoline shortage.

In soliciting quotations on the five leased vehicles, Sgt. R. J. Doney of the Mount Prospect Police called five leasing agencies. Eppley said they were selected because there are not many leasing agencies in the area; however, a check by The Herald revealed most area dealerships provide a leasing service.

Sgt. Doney sought estimates on two four-door, full-size sedans and on three four-door intermediate cars, without specifying the make.

Mount Prospect man found dead in home

A 51-year-old Mount Prospect man was found dead in his home yesterday.

Mount Prospect police said Carl Werner, 501 W. Sunset Rd., was found dead in his bedroom shortly after 2:30 p.m. Police said the man, pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital, died of a knife wound.

Police are investigating the incident.

Lumberyard workers return with new pact

The strike had a limited impact on branch lumber yards in the Northwest suburbs. Most workers were idled at the companies' main yards.

Lumberyard workers who walked off their jobs last week have returned to work in the wake of a new three-year contract that will boost their wages to $7 an hour by 1976.

Nearly 800 laborers had struck at major lumber yards throughout the metropolitan area, including the Hill-Behan Lumber Co. in Arlington Heights and Edward Hines Lumber in Wheeling and Mount Prospect.

The strike, which for most men took effect last Monday, was settled late Friday afternoon, a spokesman for International Labor Union 260 said yesterday.

Tallymen, who count and load lumber orders, were working at a basic salary of $5.30. The union and the Lumber Trade Association agreed on a $1.70-an-hour increase over the three-year life of the contract.

Woman arrested in bogus-checks case

Police have charged a Des Plaines woman with theft by deception for her alleged involvement in three bad-check incidents at a local store dating back to last May.

The woman, Carmen Diaz, 23, of 1764 Oakton, was arrested Saturday at the K-Mart store, 1155 Oakton, after store security officials noticed she fit the photo description of a woman who cashed $66.18 worth of bogus checks at the store.

Police said the woman cashed a check for $20.27 May 28, another for $26.31 June 6 and a third on Sept. 18 in the amount of $19.60.

All three checks were returned for insufficient funds, according to reports.

Miss Diaz was later released on $1,000 bond and has been scheduled to appear in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Jan. 10.

Des Plaines man hurt in accident

A 19-year-old Des Plaines man remained in good condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital, after injuries suffered Saturday in a Golf Road automobile accident.

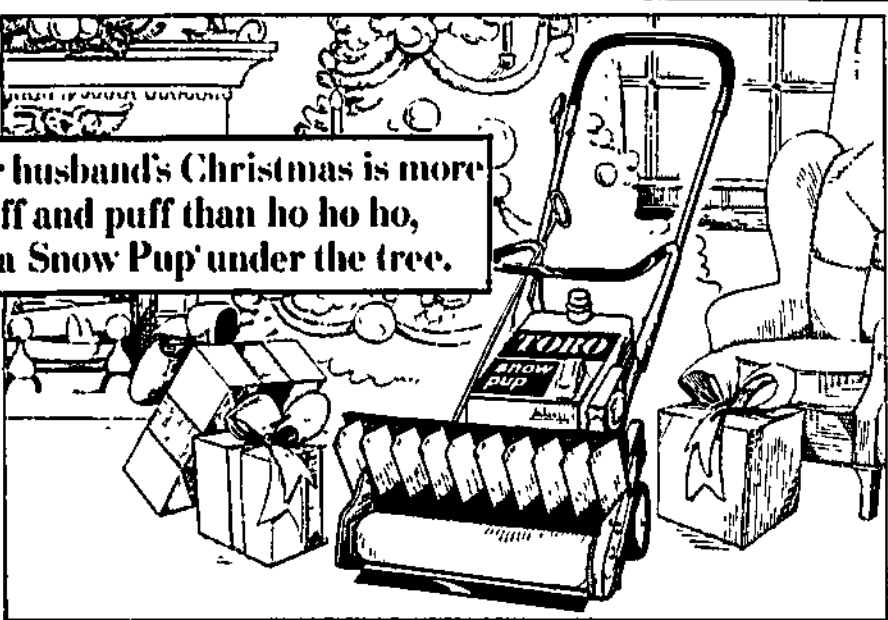

Illinois State police said Robert Pleasnick, 193 Ambleside Ln., was injured when he apparently lost control of his car while traveling east on Golf Road and struck a car operated by Glenda Clemenski, 24, of Missouri. She was traveling west, police said, when the 11:51 a.m. accident occurred.

Police have charged Pleasnick with improper lane usage. Miss Clemenski was not injured seriously. The accident occurred east of Route 53, near Owen Street.

Big three—Walker, Daley, Blair—meet in RTA summit

by BOB LAHEY
After nearly a year of political in-fighting over competing plans for a Regional Transit Authority, the state decision-makers scrapped all plans and have returned to Square One.

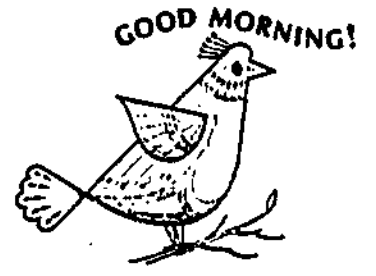

Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker, Republican House Speaker W. Robert Blair and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, the three who must ultimately agree for any RTA plan to be adopted, yesterday began a series of meetings to iron out their differences on mass transit.

after the Democratic leadership finally became resigned — after holding state legislators in session until the early hours Saturday morning — to the fact that they could not beg or borrow the three or four more votes they needed to pass Gov. Walker's RTA plan.

While the House leadership held reluctant legislators in session Friday afternoon, DeGrazia was informed that Mrs. Chapman planned to leave Springfield for a fund-raising testimonial dinner in her honor.

Over the protests of weary and impatient legislators, House Democratic Leader Clyde Choate, with the assent of Blair, won approval of a motion to adjourn until Sunday afternoon, still nursing the hope of a weekend compromise.

Small businesses urged for 8-acre Arthur Ave. site

Property along Arthur Avenue should be reserved for the little guy — the small businessman who needs a zoning district that will permit the operation of a locksmith, print shop or vacuum cleaner repair.

That is the recommendation of the village planning department as set forth in a study of the west side of Arthur between Davis Street and Central Road.

Land along Arthur and Davis, about 8 acres, is the only land in the village zoned for service uses. This, according to the report, "is an extremely small area for a community of Arlington Heights' size."

"THE MANUFACTURING and retail type uses... should be discouraged. Priority should be given to typical service-type uses generating low customer traffic," the study recommends.

Among the most desirable uses for the narrow land strip, according to the report, are: artist and industrial design studios; blue printing and photostating shops; clothing manufacturers; dry cleaners and laundry; exterminator; appliance repair shop; linen and diaper supply; locksmith; laboratories; office machine repair; offices; printing and publishing; jewelry and optical shops; photo, recording, radio and television studios; and wholesale offices.

Vacant land on the east side of Arthur, which already is the home of giant businesses such as Commonwealth Edison, Addressograph-Multigraph, Tenneco and Illinois Bell, should be filled in with other manufacturing interests, the report recommends.

Approval of the McKinley-Arthur street grade crossing is pending before the Illinois Commerce Commission.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, the dirt and asphalt will be gone in spring and instead there will be a park of flowers, trees and shrubs. Workers from the public works department are preparing the depot area in downtown Arlington Heights for the beautification project which is part of an over-all plan to enhance the village by the Arlington Beautification Council.

Police seek lawn vandals

Buffalo Grove police are searching for a white car with stolen license plates in connection with several weekend incidents in which lawns and parkways were vandalized.

Police said the car was spotted by a routine patrol about 12:44 a.m. Saturday. It had two occupants, believed to be in their 20s, police said. Police left the scene while a check of the license plates was made.

After learning the plates were stolen, police returned to the scene but the car was gone. There were, however, ruts in the parkway at 541 and 551 Checker Dr. Other ruts were reported later at 1071 Twisted Oak Ln., 530 Burnt Ember Ln., and 850 Twisted Oak Ln.

Saturday night, a car driving on lawns was reported at 700 Stanford Lane and at 1326 Mill Creek. A witness told police she saw two beige-colored cars, each with two persons in it.

Rolling Meadows man charged in accident

A Rolling Meadows man was charged with driving too fast for conditions after he rolled his car over on Palatine frontage road Monday morning.

Arlington Heights police said Daniel C. Davidson, 41, of 3004 Martin Ln., Rolling Meadows, was northbound on the road, west of Yale, when he lost control of his car. The car rolled onto its roof as it skidded into the ditch, police said.

Davidson was treated for head and facial injuries at Northwest Community Hospital and released.

12 students tour village hall here

The Arlington Heights Optimist Club sponsored a tour of Village Hall last week for 12 students from four local high schools.

The students met with Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson and toured the fire department as part of the Optimist International Youth Appreciation Week.

Taking part in the tour were Laurie Gorman and John Walsh from Arlington High School; Luther Abernethy, Robert Dapper and Peggy Kart from Forest View High School; Mark Szamocki, Richard Liska and Katie Newman from Hershey High School, and Kevin Bulman, Karen Kingsley, Cathy Sedowski and Tom Sulla from Rolling Meadows High School.

'Plenty of diesel fuel' for Metron to keep going Metron Systems Inc., has adequate diesel fuel supplies to maintain its present level of service, according to Claude Luisada, its president.

Metron operates three lines in Arlington Heights, covering Berkley Square, Northgate, Ivy Hill, Windsor Woods, Scarsdale and Surrey Ridge areas. The Village of Arlington Heights purchased two of the company's four buses, which are leased to Metron.

Luisada said, "Our suppliers have told us we can have all the diesel fuel we want, at this point."

All of the fledgling line's vehicles are diesel powered, he said. According to him, supplies for gasoline powered buses are not widely available.

ONE BUS COMPANY operating in the area plans to suspend operation indefinitely Thursday because of the fuel shortage. Continental Air Transport Co., which operates diesel buses to O'Hare Airport along Northwest Highway, announced the cutback last week. A Continental spokesman said the company's other routes would continue service.

Luisada said Metron's ridership has been increasing steadily and he forecast a continued rise.

"Our passengers are increasing all the time. And it's not all due to the gas shortage. People are getting used to us," he said.

Should the federal government impose gasoline rationing or heavy surtaxes, Luisada said Metron would reap windfall riders.

"IF IT DOES happen — and I've heard of a 40 to 60 cent added tax — more people will ride the bus. Car pools won't work. They are very hard to organize successfully," he said.

He indicated public transportation systems would receive a high priority if gasoline were rationed.

"I can't conceive the government not giving priority to transportation companies. We get between eight and nine miles to the gallon while carrying 40 passengers. A private car, which carries an average of 1.3 passengers, gets about the same mileage. The economics involved are not very subtle. They are easily seen," he said.

To conserve electricity More holiday decorations for less time

Downtown Arlington Heights will be aglow with three times as many electric Christmas decorations this year as last, but it is expected that their hours of operation will be limited in order to conserve energy.

There will be between 30 and 40 additional fixtures this year, bringing the total to about 60, according to Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce executive director Earl Johnson.

But unlike past years, when the Yule decorations were lighted shortly after Thanksgiving, this year the power may not go on until mid-December, Johnson said.

The lights also probably will be turned off the day after Christmas. Details of the lighting plan will be settled by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, who could not be reached immediately for comment.

JOHNSON SAID red, green and white candles, have been purchased to augment the 20 Italian lanterns bought last year.

Lighting will be concentrated around the downtown railroad station and along Northwest Highway from Vall Avenue to Arlington Heights Road, Johnson said. Other as-yet undetermined locations downtown will also be lighted.

Two nine-foot electric angels and a pair of electric Christmas trees also will join this year's assemblage of lighted decorations.

Two evergreen trees will be set up at the new Arlington Park train station, Johnson said, although he was not sure whether they would be lighted.

A LARGE Christmas tree is planned for a site just west of the Kentucky Fried Chicken store on Northwest Highway, another will be put up near the Dunton Court shopping center and a third will stand by the manger scene at Davis Street and Arlington Heights Road.

A total of nine trees were cut after more than 20 people called the chamber of commerce to request that overgrown evergreens be removed from their yards.

Trees selected by the village for-ester were taken down free of charge by village public works crews.

The downtown decorations will be hung later this month, Johnson said. It is expected to take several days to complete the job. Public works crews are used each year to fasten the Christmas lights to the village street lights.

Illegal Mexican aliens arrested

Arlington Heights police arrested three Mexican nationals Sunday morning after they were found sleeping on the floor of a restaurant.

According to reports, police on routine patrol discovered the side door of the Evans House Restaurant, 900 W. Northwest Highway, was open. Upon investigation, police found three men asleep on the restaurant floor.

The men, Eliseo Gallegos, 24; Martin Soto, 20, and Maximiliano Soto, 18, were found to have entered the country illegally from Mexico.

Police said the basement of the restaurant showed signs it had been used for sleeping. The trio was turned over to immigration authorities for deportation.

Apartment burglarized

An Arlington Heights couple reported their apartment was burglarized Sunday night of cash, clothing and ski equipment while they were driving a friend home.

According to police, Thomas E. Ogren, 2123 Tonne Rd., in the Gatehouse Apartments reported he and his wife left their apartment to drive a guest home, and when they returned they found the front door open.

They reported the loss of two coats, valued at $300; $190 in cash and silver dollars, and skis, boots and poles valued at more than $200.

Police said the front door appeared to have been forced open with a pry bar. According to police reports, the apartment was not ransacked, indicating the burglars might have known where to find the items.

Motorists to be surveyed to help village planners

A village-sponsored survey of Arlington Heights motorists will be conducted at 12 different locations around the village on Nov. 27-28.

The survey is designed to determine the type and volume of both local and through traffic and will be used in conjunction with future highway improvement proposals and as part of the village's new master plan, "Pattern for Growth."

Short questionnaires printed on postcards will be passed out to motorists from 7-9 a.m. and 1-3 p.m. on both days. The questionnaires will cover the origin, destination and purpose of the trip, as well as the type of vehicle.

Survey workers will be stationed at the following locations on Nov. 27 — Arlington Heights Road near Dunton School; Central Road between Busse Road and Arthur Avenue; Euclid Avenue west of Rand Road; Kensington Road between Regency Drive East and Regency Drive West; Northwest Highway between Prindle and Forrest avenues, and Thomas Avenue between Rand Road and Dryden Avenue.

On Nov. 28 survey workers will be stationed at: Arlington Heights Road near Maude Avenue; Campbell Street opposite the Westgate shopping center; Euclid Avenue between Wilko Road and Chicago Avenue; Kennicott Avenue between Maude and Lynnwood avenues; Kirchhoff Road between Dwyer and Yale avenues, and Northwest Highway between Race and Chicago avenues.

Paid volunteers will be used to take the poll. Interested persons at least 18 years old may apply for a job at the personnel office of the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Workers will be paid $3 an hour and also will be compensated for attending a 1½ hour mandatory training session on Nov. 26.

Total cost of the survey is expected to be about $1,500.

Jaycees' membership meeting Nov. 29

The Arlington Heights Jaycees will hold a membership meeting Nov. 29, at 7 p.m., at the Viking Table, 4015 W. Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows.

The meeting is open to all men between the ages of 18 and 35. The meeting will explain the goals and purposes of the organization.

The Arlington Heights Jaycees are involved in such projects as community telephone guide, Fourth of July fireworks, the Santa Phone and the Clearbrook Children's Home.

Walker to break ground for flood-control pool

Gov. Daniel Walker will be in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve today to dig out the first earth for the main pool of the flood-control reservoir in the preserve.

The reservoir is one of a series of flood control structures to be built under the $26.5 million Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control program. When completed, the projects expected to reduce flooding on the Salt Creek by up to 90 per cent.

Clearing and excavating work began last month. The project is expected to take up to nine years to be finished.

As part of the project, a multi-million dollar recreation area will be constructed in the Busse Woods section of the forest preserve.

ABOUT HALF OF the funds for the project are coming from local, regional and state government agencies. The excavating work now being done is being paid for with state money.

The balance of the funds is now to be requested from the federal government. The House Public Works Committee must pass a resolution authorizing the money. House action is the only remaining step before the federal funds are approved.

The Senate and other federal agencies have already reviewed and approved the plan.

JOINING WALKER in today's ceremony will be George Dunne, Cook County board president, Arthur Janura, Cook County Forest Preserve District general superintendent, Rep. William Redmond, D-Bensenville and Nancy Philippi, director of the governor's task force on flood control.

The governor's action today follows years of delay in attempting to get a flood control project for the Salt Creek. A final plan for the flood controls was developed in early 1972. The workplan then circulated amongst various local, regional, state and federal agencies before being approved.
